Israeli Pilots Score

TEL AVIV (AP) — "Even if they had our planes and we had their MIGs, the outcome would be the same," said the Israeli pilot as his air force announced Wednesday it had shot down the 101st Egyptian warplane since the 1967 June war.

"It is not so much the equipment involved that matters," said the flier. "It is the pilots. It appears the Egyptians don't have the skill, aggressiveness and certainly not the motivation of our pilots."

Israel claimed three MIG21s were brought down in a flurry of aerial combat Wednesday over the Suez Canal area.

The Israelis also claim 23 Syrian aircraft downed since the war. In this same period, Israel says it lost 20 plans, including 11 to the Egyptians.

The Israelis attribute 76 of their 101 kills to aerial combat and the rest to antiaircraft guns and missiles. By contrast, they say Egyptian pilots have downed only four Israeli planes in dogfights.

Military experts consider the Israeli air force highly trained, efficient and well led. After it wiped out most of the Arab air fleets in the 1967 war, its commander, Maj. Gen. Mordechai Hod, boasted that he had "the best pilots in the world."

But despite their success, the Israelis are probably the most faceless fliers in the glamorous history of aerial warfare.

Military communiques speak only of strikes and kills by Israeli air force planes. They never mention the type of plane, the units or the names of pilots.

An air force source, asked who was the leading ace, would say only that he has 11 kills to his credit.

Israel has complained that the Arabs mistreated some of the few Israeli pilots who have been captured. The source said names and individual accomplishm qe not publicized so as not to invite retaliation if any of them are captured.

It is known that many of the pilots are kibbutzniks, raised in the frontier agricultural settlements in semimilitary surroundings under the sights of Arab gunners.

Asked about Egyptian air defenses, the pilot replied: "Ineffective. The fact we fly freely over their territory is the best evidence. The Egyptians can seldom enter Israeli territory without being intercepted and shot down."

"There is the feeling that the Egyptians want to avoid a fight," he said. "They generally break off contact first in an air fight."

Israeli pilots have not yet tested the SAM3s, the advanced Soviet antiaircraft missiles which reportedly are guarding Egypt's interior. Nor have there been any clashes reported with Russian pilots said to be flying defense missions over inner Egypt.

Informed sources say the pilot receives a certificate and a bottle of French champagne for each Arab plane he downs.

"Since they are nondrinkers, the bottles are put on display as trophies," one informant said.

Israeli planes continued their intensive bombing of Egyptian military targets along the Suez Canal with a 24-hour sunrise attack today, the military command announced. All planes returned safely, it said.

In the last four days, Israeli jets have hammered Egyptian canal positions for a total of 48 hours, the most prolonged bombing since the 1967 war.

Israeli planes hit Egyptian positions for 15 hours Wednesday. An Egyptian spokesman said two Israeli Mirages were shot down, but the Israelis denied this. The Egyptians admitted the loss of only one of the three planes claimed by the Israelis.

Travelers arriving in Lebanon from Cairo reported that the Egyptian capital is in the grips of a cholera scare after reports of an outbreak of the disease in two suburbs. An Egyptian spokesman dismissed the reports as rumors, but travelers said 16 persons had died in the industrial suburb of Khanka, cases were found in the fashionable suburb of Heliopolis, and hundreds are lining up for inoculation.

Hogs Given Roadside Burial

BENTON — A boy discarded four dead hogs along a highway near Chaffee earlier this week.

Sheriff's officers found out the youth's identity and as a consequence he was made to bury the animals where they had been thrown.

No arrest was made.

The hogs had been killed by lightning.

This Mediterranean island has often been the scene of bloody battling between its Greek inhabitants, many of whom favor union with Greece, and its Turkish minority, which favors dividing the island in two. But trouble lately has been confined to the Greeks. The terrorist National Front has renewed its demand for "enosis" or union with Greece. But the government of President Makarios is dedicated to independence. So far, the Turks are not involved in the latest round of trouble. AP Newsfeatures

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once again, the cry of "enosis" is ringing on the craggy Mediterranean island of Cyprus. Enosis means union of the island to Greece; for Cypriot President Makarios it means trouble.

Cyprus is an island about 140 miles by 60 miles located in the eastern part of the Mediterranean. It is 40 miles south of Turkey and 60 miles west of Syria.

The population of some 600,000 is about 80 per cent Greek and 20 per cent Turkish.

Because of its position in relation to the Middle East, Cyprus represented an important stepping stone in medieval religious crusades and trading.

The island's modern history reaches back to the late 16th centruy when the Ottoman Turks expelled the Venetians, who had gained power through a long series of military ventures and political manevers. The Turks ruled the island for more than 300 years, until 1878, when Great Britain took over and occupied it by agreement with the Turks.

Although Cyprus remained under Turkish sovereignty, the British controlled its administration in exchange for assuring British help in the event the Russians attacked Turkey's eastern provinces.

From the start of British admisistration the Greek population of the island, left from the days of Greek influence during the fifth centruy, began to demand enosis. For many years, the request was of little more than academic interest.

But in 1914, war broke out between Britain and Turkey, and the British annexed Cyprus. A year later, they offered the island to the Greeks, if the Greeks would help Serbia, which was being invaded at the time by Bulgaria. Greece refused to help Serbia, and the offer lapsed.

Between the two world wars, agitation for enosis among the island's Greek population increased, and in 1931 the British abolished the island's legislature and vested power in the governor alone.

After World War II, Orthodox Archbishop Makarios emerged as the leader of the movement for independenc. The campaign for union with Greece became more violent, and British, Greek and Turkish foreign ministers could not reach a solution to the problem of widespread terrorism.

The terrorist campaign against British installations and military personnel was kept up by a former Greek army officer, Col. Georgios Grivas. In 1955, emergency regulations were introduced, British reinforcements were sent to the island, and negotiations were begun with Markarios.

Although the British were willing to grant a measure of self-government, Makarios demanded independence. The negotiations broke down and Makarios was deported to the Seychelles. For the next year, terrorism continued unabated, and finally cooled off for a time when the British agreed to allow Makarios to go anywhere besides Cyprus.

The Turkish population was growing increasingly restive over the growing possibility of enosis, and the Turks proposed that Cyprus be partitioned.

The agruments for partition on the one hand and enosis on the other were settled after Makarios proposed self-government for a time, which was to be followed by independence.

The Greek demands for enosis continued, however, and Grivas returned to the island, this time as a general in the Greek army, to announce that he favored enosis. At first, he said he was expressing a private opinion, but he later was put in charge he later was put in charge of Greek Cypriot security forces on the island.

Under an agreement between Turkey and Greece in 1959 (Britain later accepted the terms of the agreement) military presence of all three counties was maintained on the island, despite its new independence.

In the mid '60s, Turkey and Greece came close to war over the island.

Last March, an attempt was made to assassinate President Makarios. Those charged with the assassination attempt were said to be members of the National Front, an organization supporting enosis which has claimed responsibility for many terrorist incidents.

Recently, about 70 men broke into a police station in the southern part of the island and stole a large supply of arms and ammunition. Makarios, angered at the raid, dismissed a number of police officers for dereliction of duty.

The president has said the March assassination attempt was not an isolated incident, and recent activities of the National Front suggest he may be right.

The recent skirmishing so far has pitted Greek Cypriots against Greek Cypriots. What will happen if Turkish Cypriots should get involved in the violence is anybody's guess. But no one expects enosis to get close to reality without the Turks raising their voices in protest.

Kids Day to Be Held on June 24

A Citywide Kids Day for children, six through 14, will be held on the high school football field, June 24, beginning at 1 p.m.

Boys and girls will compete in contests in three age groups, six to eight, nine to 12, ans 12 to 14.

Four trophies will be awarded at the end of the performances. Each child may enter as many as four of six events.

The events will be 50-yard dash, sack race, softball distance throw, standing broad jump, backward running race and egg race.

The only admission requirement will be a registration blank signed by the parent or guardian. The blank will be printed in the Daily Standard June 17.

Acitivities will end with the serving of hot dogs, potato chips and soft drinks.

Mrs. Steve Lacy announced the program, which she said was planned by a group of women after the city announced plans for a summer recreation program had been abandoned.

Charleston Boy Killed by Car

CHARLESTON — Four-year-old William Robert Harvey, son of Mrs. Delores Combs, was injured fatally in a street accident Wednesday at 7 p.m., while crossing to a ball park.

He was struck by a 1968 Buick, driven by Joyce McClendon, 34, Charleston.

He was dead on arrival at Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Power Need May Bring Rate Hike

The Board of Public Works yesterday reviewed an engineering firm's report on Sikeston's electrical power supply needs for 10 years. Director Dick Inman said no action was taken.

Sikeston's use of power has been increasing 11 to 15 per cent each year Inman said, and the present supply can meet the city's needs for only one or two years, then additional electrical power will be needed.

The engineering firms study recommended either Sikeston light and water purchase the needed power or expand their own generating facilities. Inman said the city could purchase additional power, but he doubts if it can be obtained at "rates workable with our system." A rate increase probably will be put into effect.

Inman said the city probably will be able to purchase power from the Southwest Power Administration to meet needs at peak use times.

Four Treated

Four were treated in Missouri Delta Community hospital Wednesday:

Wilson Dewitt Gleuck of Vanduser injured left leg and shoulder on motorcycle; Kerry Lee Standridge of Sikeston stepped on glass; Clyde Joseph Brocker of Sikeston had piece of steel in eye; and Rhonda Faye Hubbert of Sikeston cut forehead on boat.

41 Plan for Another Count of Residents

Forty one met at the city administration building Thursday night to make plans for a recount of Sikeston residents.

Clem Beal, who is heading a citizens for growth committee of the Chamber of Commerce, announced tentative plans that call for 13 zones to be outlined within the city limits. Each zone will have a captain from civic organizations. A meeting of captains will be held to firm up plans and rules for the recount.

Sikeston's population, according to preliminary census figures, increased by only 700 persons during the past decade. The count now stands at 14,488.

Beal explained the city and Chamber of Commerce has had enough calls from persons not counted in the census that "it is imperative we count it again." Beal said primarily the recount is needed for industrial prospects and the state gasoline tax revenue which is paid on per capita basis.

Thirty families ranging from two to eight persons have reported exclusion from the census.

City Manager W. Raymert Miller explained census bureau officials in St. Paul, Minn., have indicated that persons excluded from the official census count woud be added. Miller said it is doubtful another official government census would be made.

Several persons, who worked on the census were at last night's meeting. A few indicated displeasure with the feeling the official census count is being discredited.

Beal said no one is questioning the census takers and the jobs they did.

The question was raised about whether the recount would include only persons living in the city on April 1. The official census count was based on April 1 residents. The recount will include servicemen and college students who were not necessarily living in Sikeston on that date, but these will not be included in the federal census count.

"It will mean a lot of work," Beal said, "but it is important."

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE Manager O. D. Clayton distributes forms that will be used to recount Sikeston residents.

Hearing in Death Case Tuesday

NEW MADRID — James Herman Meese, 30, was arraigned this morning in magistrate court on a first degree murder charge. He requested a preliminary hearing.

Judge Leo Hedgepeth set Tuesday for the hearing. Meese is being held in the county jail unable to post $10,000 bond.

Meese was taken into custody in St. Louis Tuesday following the fatal shooting of Houston Ray Moore, 37, of Campbell at the home of Meese's former wife in Gideon at 4 a.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Michael Posts Bond on Assault Charge

BENTON — Mrs. Judy Michael of Sikeston posted $500 bond Thursday in connection with last month's shooting of her husband, Aubrey Michael, in the left leg with a .38 caliber pistol.

A warrant was issued earlier in the week charging her with felonious assault. Mrs. Michael posted bond in Scott County Sheriff John Dennis' office.

Wilson Named to Represent Wilburn

BENTON--Attorney John Wilson was appointed Wednesday in magistrate court to represent Sam "Buddy Jives" Wilburn, 69, of Sikeston, accused of shooting Albert Brown, 55, also of Sikeston, last week.

Brown died of gunshot wounds Wednesday morning in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Magistrate M. E. Montgomery appointed Wilson after it was learned Wilburn does not have funds to hire an attorney. Wilson will be assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott County as of July 1.

James E. Moore III, who now serves as assistant prosecutor, said Wilburn probably will be charged with criminal homicide. He was charged with felonious assault prior to Brown's death. Wilburn was released from custody by Judge Montgomery to return on his own recognizance.

In other court action Wednesday Marilyn Hopper, Vanduser, was given a suspended 60-day jail term and fined $100 for driving without an operator's license.

Persons fined for speeding included J.E. Noble, Chaffee, $40; Ellen Nunnally, Cape Girardeau, $28, and Aubrey Michael Jr., route one, Benton, $25.

Fined for careless driving were G.W. Enderle, Illmo, $10; Curtis Finney, Bell City, $5, and A.W. Zimmer, Cape Girardeau, $5.

James Brown, Delta, was fined $10 for peace disturbance.

Edward Richter, New Wells, was fined $15 for failure to have a public carrier service permit.

Willie Vines, Vanduser, was fined $100 for driving while intoxicated.

B.G. Marshall, Scott City, was fined $10 for failure to have a driver's license.

House, Senate Works

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — House and Senate conferees started work today on the first of the main appropriation bills passed by the Senate Wednesday.

Police Eye Speeders, Dogs And Children

Police are beginning a crackdown on speeding motorists, stray dogs and children playing in the street.

Police Chief Arthur Bruce said the department is getting an increasing number of complaints about stray dogs and he warned dog owners to keep their animal on their own property. If not, he said, dog owners are going to be arrested.

Officers operated radar on Murray Lane and Helen Street Wednesday and made eight citations and issued warnings.

In the next few weeks radar will be used at various points in the city.

"We're going to have to slow the motorists down," Chief Bruce said.

The chief appealed to parents to caution their children not to play in he streets.

"This is going to have to stop or we are going to have some children seriously hurt," Bruce said.

Explosive Resolutions Reaches Missouri House

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A couple of potentially explosive resolutions reached the Missouri House Wednesday before the members quit for the weekend.

It was not known when they might be taken up during the final week of the special session that starts Monday. In the hectic windup they could be overlooked altogether.

One, by three Republican members from St. Louis County, commended the University of Missouri Board of Curators for its demand that faculty and students involved in an anti-war demonstration last month be punished.

The resolution said the curators "acted in a most responsible manner to halt and curtail future campus disruptions."

Reservoir Ruptures in Florida

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A ruptured reservoir and flood waters from six days of rain drove more than 500 persons to emergency shelters and closed major highways in Florida's Panhandle Wednesday night.

No injuries were reported.

At Pensacola, police evacuated 400 persons as up to seven feet of water slammed into their homes after the wall of a city reservoir burst in two places. Electricity was knocked out in some sections, including one hospital.

The Weather Bureau forecast scattered showers again today for the Pensacola area, already soaked by more than 13 inches of rain since Friday—seven inches of it Wednesday.

43 Nobel Winners Writes Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Fortythree Nobel laureates in science have joined in a letter to President Nixon urging him to "rise to the heroism that these times demand and take swift and decisive steps" to end U.S. involvement in the war in Indochina.

"We agree with the stand of many that the health of this nation depends on a swift disengagement from war in Southeast Asia although the violent tactics used by some to express this are repugnant to us," the scientists said.

Announcement of the letter, whose signers represent nearly three-quarters of the Nobel science prize-winning recipients in the United States, was made Wednesday simultaneously in New York, San Francisco and Chicago.

Nixon's Postal Reform to Debut in House Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's postal reform legislation makes its debut on the House floor next week, a year--and the nation's first postal strike—after it was sent to Congress.

The bill calls for a massive overhaul of the Post Office into a semi-autonomous agency able to set its own rates, wages and investment plans.

Action on the measure, which carries an 8 per cent pay hike for postal workers, is expected to head off renewed talk of a second walkout because of Congressional inaction.

The Senate is expected to consider a similar reorganization bill later this summer. Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, speaking informally to newsmen Wednesday, expressed hope the legislation could be approved by fall.

Passage of the postal reform package would conclude a drive begun three years ago when then Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien proposed a postal corporation, declaring the 200-year-old Post Office "is in a race with disaster."

That conclusion was echoed a year later by a presidential commission. The Nixon administration introduced its reform legislation May, 1969.

Neither the House nor the Senate bill conforms exactly with the legislation submitted by the administration last year. But Blount said differences are of a technical, rather than substantive nature.

"When we first submitted the legislation, we said there were four basic things we wanted in a postal reform bill: control of our investment policy, control of our costs, proper control of our income or rates and continuity of management.

"Our feet weren't set in concrete as far as form as long as these four principles were preserved. These are principles that we will not compromise on."

Even though Congress appears likely to pass the reform legislation, the administration has received one setback: proposals for higher postage rates seem doomed this year.

In the interview, Blount did not consider passage of the rate increases a condition for acceptance of the reform and pay hike package.

Under either Senate or House bills, the new postal service would be divorced completely from the President's cabinet and be run by a board appointed by the President.

The board, in turn, would hire a manager to run the service on a day-to-day basis.

Rates would be set by a rate commission, also appoionted by the President. Proposed new rates need approval of the board and, in the House version, could be vetoed by a majority vote in either chamber within 90 days.

Salaries for postal workers, now set by Congress, would be subject to negotiations between management and the postal unions. Other than the right to strike, the postal workers would have all labor rights accorded workers in private industry.

Both bills allow the management of the new postal service to issue up to $10 billion in general obligation bonds to finance new buildings and equipment. Currently, money for such purposes is doled out by Congress.

PUNCTURED DREAM

The House will vote shortly on a new legislative package aimed at helping the nation's depressed housing industry.

One day not too long ago, Richard A. Lis went to a real estate office in a Chicago suburb and listed his place of business for sale. It was a real estate office. "It got to be too much for me," he said. Worsening inflation, tigher money and higher interest rates are turning the American dream of everyone owning his own home into a nightmare.

"Virtually all moderate- income families have been priced out of the housing market," says Rep. Wright Patman (D. Texas), chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee. A recent staff study by his committee showed that 28.4 million households could not afford the payments on a $20,000 house loan -- the typical financing on houses sold under government mortgages.

Housing starts have been declining since last summer, reports the National Association of Home Builders. Nathan H. Rogg, its vice president, states that during the first four months of the year, construction fell 21.6 per cent from the 496,100 units begun during the same period in 1969. New starts totaled 1.4 million last year and government economists have predicted that even with an upturn, production will be no higher this year.

Single family homes have suffered the most during the current crunch. The NAHB estimated that 730,000 single family homes will be built this year, almost 50,000 fewer than in 1966, when the last crisis occurred in the housing market. Many builders are losing interest in single family homes and want to concentrate on apartments and developments. Michael Sumichrast, the group's chief economist, explains: "Builders, due to the shortage of funds, are now putting up larger and more costly units, since it is easier to get financing on this type of unit."

Less costly new homes can still be found in metropolitan areas, but many are far from the city. Mainly, they are homes insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. Even these have gone up sharply in price. The only low cost housing available in many areas is mobile homes. An estimated 400,000 were sold this year. Housing costs are being pushed upward by the "four L's"-- land, labor, loans and lumber and other building materials.

To stimulate the housing market, the Senate has approved an administration - sponsored plan authorizing the Federal Home Loan Bank to subsidize loans to the nation's savings and loan associations, the largest single source of credit for home construction. The bill permits states to charge lower interest rates than required by federal law for urban renewal or public housing projects.

Plans are also under discussion to insulate mortgage financing from the effects of restrictive monetary practices aimed at restraining inflation. One idea calls for flexible interest rates on housing that go up and down along with other interest costs. Supporters say it would attract more money into the mortgage market. "Impatience for quicker resolution of existing housing deficiencies is predictable," says the Morgan Guaranty Survey of the prospects for approval of such proposals.

But even if you can find your dream house and have the money to pay for it, your troubles are not over. Maintenance costs, utilities and taxes are still on their way up.

HOW TO TALK GOOD

The English have no respect for their language and will not teach their children to speak it... It is impossible for an Englishman to open his mouth without making some other Englishman despise him.

--George Bernard Shaw, Pygmalion

Professor 'enry 'iggins would be pleased to know that Wednesday, May 20, was Eliza Doolittle Day, the purpose of which is "to honor Miss Doolittle for demonstrating the importance of speaking one's language properly." Eliza, of course, is the heroine of Shaw's Pygmalion and of the musical My Fair Lady -- the Cockney waif who becomes a great lady through speech therapy.

On the other hand, Higgins--and Shaw, his creator--probably would disapprove of current developments in linguistics. Where Shaw believed in a single standard of acceptable speech and a simplified alphabet, today's linguistics scholar revels in the diversity of speech patterns. For example, the school of thought known as structural linguistics tends to reject the idea that there is any "right" or "correct" grammar; its permissive principles influenced the word selection of Webster's Third New International Dictionary.

A second school of thought called transofmrational linguistics, of which Noam Chomsky of M.I.T. is the leading exponent, contends that language is an innate, instinctively acquired facility. The study of language, Chomsky and his followers says, should start with sentences and then try to discern the rules by which a sentence conveys its meaning.

If Higgins were plying his trade today, he no doubt would be a sociolinguist-- one who studies socially determined speech patterns. He would use a tape recorder to capture Eliza's gutteral consonants and tortured vowels and relate them to her Covent Garden background. But he would not bother to teach her Oxbridge English. Poor Eliza would keep on saying "The rine in Spine falls minely in the pline."

Driving studies are generally conducted to determine the causes of accidents. Most of the facts and figures coming out of these studies are grim.

But if you pick through a large number of the research reports, you can generally find "by- product" information that is unusual; and sometimes funny.

Here are some examples, taken from tests conducted by the Highway Research Board, the National Safety Council, various insurance companies and other organizations.

--Ministers, presumably lost in deep thought, tend to drive faster, collect more traffic citations and have more "fender- bender" accidents than the average person.

--Drivers on long trips tend to drive faster than motorists on short excursions over the same roads.

--Drivers with high annual mileage rates tend to drive faster than occasional motorists.

--If you own your own car, you're likely to drive slower than someone you lend it to. This reportedly is especially true of younger drivers.

--Divorcees, male or female, tend to drive faster than married persons.

--Buses travel faster than most passenger cars, while trucks travel much slower. And the more trucks in the traffic flow, the slower the overall speed of the traffic.

--New cars are generally driven faster than old ones.

--High- priced, heavier autos are generally driven faster than cheaper, lightweight cars, including the sport models.

--Automobiles hitting public utility poles cause more than 60,000 blackouts in this country each year.

--Fatal accidents involving animals or animal- drawn vehicles seem to be on the increase-- at the rate of about ten per cent a year.

* * * One of the largest, oldest and most successful of national advertisers is Proctor & Gamble. The company has been a consistent advertiser for nearly 80 years.

The company's approach to advertising has not changed since the beginning. It is based on "six convictions" which briefly states:

"Advertising's chief role is that of selling consumer. There are other ways to do the job. But we believe that advertising is the most effective and efficient."

"Advertising can and does broaden existing markets and create new ories more rapidly, more intensively and less expensively than any other method..."

"Properly used, advertising brings about savings o the consumer that may exceed substantially the cost of advertising..."

"Advertising cannot build an enduring business for a poor product; It cannot sell a product in a competitive market unless there is continual product improvements..."

"Advertisng forces competition. Advertising will not work effectively if thyproduct is not fully competitive in price..."

"Advertising and scientific research work hand in glove. When a company is confident of its ability to inform the public quickly, it is more willing to invest dollars in the research needed to bring about improvements..."

These principles could e applied to any business, from the small etail shop to the largest industry.

Hal Boyle

HAL BOYLE (NEW YORK (AP) — One of the common complaints of people who live in big cities is that they have trouble getting good fresh summer vegetables.

Those available at the store are often force-ripened, tired tasting, or limp from too much refrigeration. Lacking is the tangy backyard taste of homegrown vegetables.

There is a way, however, you can live in the city and get all the fresh vegetables you want at no cost whatsoever. All you have to do is play on the vanity of suburban gardeners.

Let us say that you have three office friends who commute daily to work and have backyard gardens at their homes. They are named Tom, Dick and Harry.

Here's what you do:

Early in the season you go up to Tom and say:

"I'm sorry to hear about your tough luck."

"What tough luck?" he asks.

"About your radish crop. Dick and Harry told me the flugelbugs got them all."

"What the devil do Dick and Harry know about gardening?" demands Tom. "I never had better radishes in my life."

The next day he brings you in a double armload of radishes to prove his point.

After you have eaten them, you go to Dick and with a long face seek to sympathize with him about the disaster that happened to his green onions.

"I hear the pango worms got what the rabbits didn't," you say. "Tom and Harry told me about it."

The next morning Dick overwhelms you with a 15-pound bag of green onions and an hourlong denunciation of Tom and Harry for being chronic liars.

When you weary of green onions, you simply go to Harry and tell him its a real shame what Dick and Tom just told you—that a horde of Tibetan beetles wrecked his green beans because he forgot to spray.

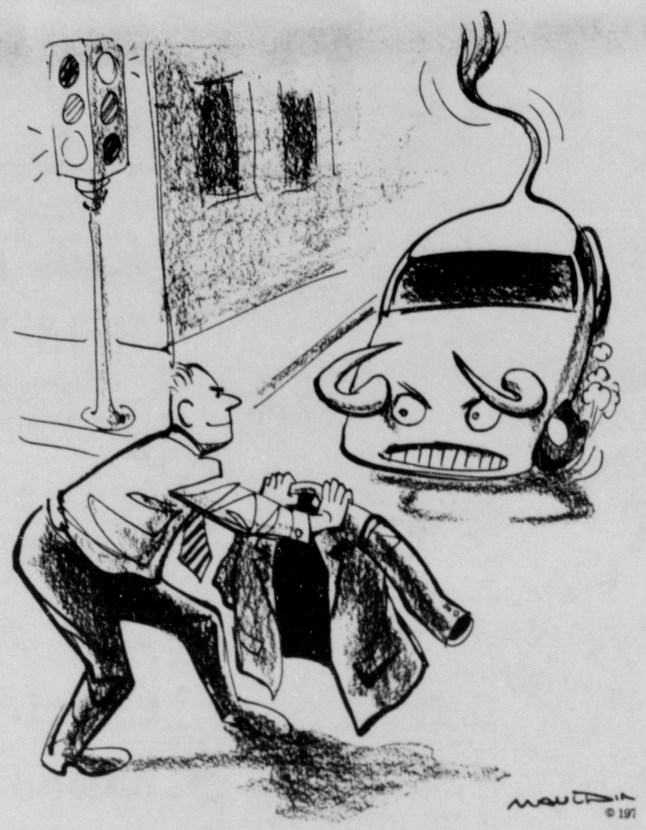

This supposed criticism by his rivals makes Harry so frantic that overnight he strips his garden of green beans and shows up at your desk with a pushcart full of them.

So it goes. You keep playing Tom, Dick and Harry against each other, and all sommer long your table is inundated with a quality of cauliflower, lettuce, cucumbers, squashes, watermelons and corn on the cob that money can't buy in the city.

You'd think they'd get wise to your little game, but they never do—because you've got them so piqued they aren't speaking to each other. If one of them actually does have a bad crop, say of beefsteak tomatoes, he'll scour the farms in outlying areas to buy some better ones, and palm them off on you as his own. He'll do anything rather than let you think his green thumb has turned rusty.

Of course, if you're the greedy type and there are 10 suburban gardeners in your office, you can play them all off against each other. That way you can get enough free vegetables for your wife to set up an orange crate stand in your front yard and sell them to passers-by.

But that would be carrying a good thing too far.

The Englishman asked: "Why does he walk so slowly while the others ran so fast?"

His friend replied: "Because he got four balls."

The Englishman thought a moment and mused. "By jove, that would slow him down a bit, wouldn't it?"

BASIC CAUSES— "Our government today is following the same path toward national insolvency that over the past years was followed by Great Britain, a policy which last year resulted in the devaluation of the pound," said Sen. John J. Williams (R.-Del.). "The basic cause of the undermining of confidence in the American dollar is not the shortage of gold but concern over the fiscally - irresponsible policies of living beyond our income without at the same time demonstrating that we have the courage either to reduce expenditures or to raise taxes. Congress must attack the basic cause of inflation and the threat to the American dollar, and that can only be done by a realistic reduction in expenditures and a sound tax policy."

WHY WORRY?

There are only two things to worry about, either you're well or you are sick - if you are well then there is nothing to worry about.

But if you are sick - there are only two things to worry about. Either you get well or you will die. If you get well there is nothing to worry about. If you die there are only two things to worry about.

H.L. Hunt Says

BE POSITIVE
FOR FREEDOM

With freedom so obviously threatened we cannot afford to waste time in gloomy discussion. Freedomists must act!

Commend your clergyman when he preaches against atheism, communism sin and crime. Let him know you suppot his efforts.

When businessmen advertise in patriotic publications or with a patriotic program on the air, phone or visit and tell them of your pleasure and admiration for what they are doing.

There is at least one patriot on the staff of every newspaper, magazine, radio and TV station. Seek them out and offer commendation and encouragement for their efforts on freedom's side.

Although you may not convert the atheist and dictator-minded, you may have opportunity to speak a fit word to his fellow travelers. If you can reach them you can often convert them by stating the case for freedom and leaving them to think it over.

Explore this nation's glorious history with the young people of your acquaintance. Acquaint them with the immortals of this Republic's illustrious past. A lad who is taught to admire Paul Revere, George Washington, Nathan Hale, Patrick Henry and Davy Crockett will not grow up to be an admirer of Karl Marx, Mao-Tse Tung, Ho Chi Minh or Che Guevara.

There is far more good news for the freedom side now than there has been for four decades, and freedomists must heed the words of the old Johnny Mercer song of World War II, to "Accentuate the positive, eliminate the negative, latch on to the affirmative and don't mess with Mr. In- between." HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The ouster of Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk has stirred up plots in Laos to dump Prince Souvanna Phouma and set up a Cambodian- style military government. This could repeat the Cambodian crisis all over again in Laos, with dangerous consequences for the U.S.

Intelligence reports warn that rightist Laotian leaders have been encouraged by the Cambodian experience to attempt a similar takeover in their country. They are weary of the aging Souvanna Phouma who, like Sihanouk, has put on a show of outward neutrality. But just as Sihanouk permitted secret incursions by the North Vietnamese, Souvanna Phouma allowed the Americans to operate in Laos.

The Kremlin had promised both leaders that the North Vietnamese would leave their countries after the Vietnam war was settled. But as the encroachments increased, the two princes lost faith in the Soviet promise and concluded that the North Vietnamese would never clear out voluntarily.

Souvanna Phouma turned increasingly to the U.S. to save Laos from the communist crunch. But Sihanouk flew to Moscow and Peking to enlist support in getting the North Vietnamese out of Cambodia. While he was on this mission, he was deposed by the generals he left behind. Now he has joined the same forces, ironically, that he had tried to remove.

SECRET UNDERSTANDING

Washington and Moscow reached a secret understanding, meanwhile, to keep still about the U.S. intervention in Laos. As long as the U.S. didn't officially acknowledge its clandestine operations, the Kremlin agreed to ignore them.

The Russians, as they had promised Sihanouk and Souvanna Phouma, also guaranteed there would be no North Vietnamese takeover of Laos and Cambodia. Both the Soviets and Americans agreed to endeavor, at least, to confine the war to South Vietnam.

At no time did the U.S. wish to expand the Vietnam war into a full-scale Indochina war. Restricting the battlefield to South Vietnam, however, also had advantages for the communists. It meant that the U.S. could never really win the war. For it is impossible to defeat an enemy who can escape across the border into sanctuaries.

In 1964, the North Vietnamese began enlarging their sanctuary privileges in Laos by attacking the Plain of Jars and increasing the infiltration down the Ho Chi Minh spiderweb of trails.

The U.S. countered by stepping up its clandestine activities and bombing the infiltration routes. After the bombing of North Vietnam was halted in 1968, the U.S. simply moved the sorties across the border and concentrated the full fury upon Red targets in Laos.

CIA'S SECRET ARMY

The Central Intelligence Agency, meanwhile, has subsidized a secret army in Laos under Gen. Vang Pao, a vulgar ex- French Army sergeant, whose 14,000 fighting men have been recruited largely from the minority Meo tribes.

The secret army is headquarterd at the multi-million- dollar CIA base of Long Cheng. A steady stream of Air America and Continental Air Services planes, under CIA and AID contracts, haul food, munitions and the monthly payroll for Vang Pao's troops.

Stories have now leaked out about this clandestine army, describing it accurately as the only effective fighting force in Laos on the American side. Yet my reporter in Indochina, Les Whitten, reports from Vientiane:

"The sad fact is that all the millions expended upon Vang Pao's mercenaries have not convinced one responsible U.S. official in Saigon or Vientiane that this land of 2.8 million people can be defended for more than a few weeks by the secret army against a determined communist attack.

"The communist Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese control half of Laos and clearly could take over the other half almost at will."

Whitten adds that "the fabled CIA forces, which liberal Senators regard as some kind of powerful presence in Laos, are made up, in fact, of time servers, a few brilliant intelligence men and a larger number of ex-servicemen who are as harassed as any Washington bureaucrats simply trying to carry out routine duties.

CIA ROUTINE

"Much of their time is spent going to Lao units like traveling salesmen taking orders for ammunition and guns. At other times, they are paymasters, making sure than Vang Pao's officers don't pocket the pay that is supposed to go the soldiers.

"The CIA agents also wearily stress to the Laotians on the U.S. payroll: 'No boom boom, no rice.' If they refuse to fight, in other words, they will get no food or pay.

"While the secret army is at least classifiable as a military force, some of the other Laotian army units are hardly more than poorly trained and homesick militia. Their pay is as low as $6 per month, compared to about $25 for Vang Pao's riflemen.

"The Lao generals, meanwhile, are up to their brass buttons in scandals. Some front for such enterprises as bowling alleys and nightclubs, often owned by Chinese. The name of a general protects the owner from confiscation or excessive taxation by corrupt officials.

"One general reportedly has been selling the Lao national forest to the Thais for American - financed construction projects. A U.S. effort to license and certify the health of Laos's prostitutes was thwarted by another general who didn't want to call attention to his source of income."

Whitten declares that Souvanna Phouma, whom the right- wing generals would like to depose, remains in Laos only by communist sufferance. The communists, reports Whitten, "may fear intervention from Thailand with its pudgy but large army and population 11 times that of Laos, or from U.S. ground forces in the Cambodian pattern.

"Or they may, as some cynics suggest, prefer to wait while the U.S. builds fine roads, structures and air fields that soon will be left behind."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

INSIDE WHITE HOUSE:

U.S. Labor Chiefs Rally to Israel; Urge Nixon to Counter Soviets Immediately

WASHINGTON, D.C.:-It has been little noticed that with the President and the hard hats in the Oval and Cabinet rooms the other Tuesday (May 26) was a bantam Irishman, "Teddy" Gleason, who long ago gave up his waterfront hook for a tough political jab.

When the moment came for Mr. Gleason, national chief of the longshoremen, to have his minutes with President Nixon, "Teddy" in that dockside Hell's Kitchen bluntness said:

"Mr. President, it's all woven together for us. We can't show the white feather either in Vietnam or in Israel. If we run they'll run after us."

Ted Gleason has as much use for euphemism as he has for raspberry soda. He laid it on the line. He did not use the cover argot of "the Middle East." He said Israel, his people, the hard hats and the labor movement want the U.S. to sell jet fighters to the besieged Jewish state.

Anything else would be cowardice, "the white feather," said "Teddy." The hard hats, listening intently, nodded a grim approval.

Mr. Nixon listened. He gestured with his hands. To "Teddy" Gleason and to the No. 1 Hard Hat, Peter Brennan, the gesture appeared to indicate approval of their intense words--that rejection of Israel's request for the right to buy, cash on the barrelhead, the fighter craft it needs to balance off the Soviet-Egyptian-Syrian-Jordanian military coalition, would be fatal cowardice.

However, only the President knows what he meant. And only the President will make the final decision. But there is no doubt that he will be pressured by most of American labor. Whoever else may abandon tiny Israel, the massive American labor movement won't. AFL-CIO President George Meany has made this as plain as a Sphinx silhouette in a desert twilight. He has spoken publicly and privately to the President. He was as blunt with the State Dept. as is the front end of his chewed cigar.

In fact, in the U.S. he is Israel's most powerful ally. He is not an election time friend. As a result he has been journalistically brutalized by the Soviet press as an ally of the industrial-military complex. The Russians have reason to hate him. In his anti-communism Mr. Meany has been about as movable as one of the pyramids.

He has fought them on every front. Over the years he has prevented the State Dept. from yielding to Moscow's bids for exchange of labor delegations. When the Reuthers invited the director for international affairs of the All-Union Central Council of Soviet Trade Unions, Boris A. Averianov, to attend a United Auto Workers conference, the AFL-CIO fought the issuance of a visa. Why?

Because Mr. Meany does not believe that Soviet labor organizations are legitimate trade unions.

And because Mr. Meany and his collegues know that Tovarich Averianov has been directing a brutal and distasteful attack on Israel, aiding the Arab propagandists and assailing friends of Israel inside the world labor movements.

And because the Soviet "unions" national chairman, Aleksandr Shelepin, is a former secret police chief. Shelepin went to Cairo two years ago and unleashed a crude attack on Israel, sort of a keynote speech for all Communist-controlled and pro-Soviet labor movements across the world. It was the signal.

Mr. Meany, himself an ex-hard hat, never has missed the chance to speed to Israel's aid. On May 13 the AFL-CIO Executive Council--a day after listening to Mr. Nixon's briefing on Cambodia--passed a razor-edged resolution calling for the sale of military aircraft to the little state of 2.8 million now holding its own against 80 million Arabs--and 10,000 Soviet missilemen, ground troops and pilots.

"We strongly urge the administration to act favorably and promptly on Israel's economic and military needs and thus preserve the balance of power-- not merely for the sake of Israel but in the interest of preserving world peace and freedom."

There was much more to this resolution. It was all rushed to the White House in an hour.

Mr. Meany's own intelligence sources know that the Soviets now actually run Egypt. President Gamal Abdel Nasser himself told this to David Rockefeller, head of the Chase Manhattan Bank which has done so much for Israel's financial and bond structure.

This was passed on to President Nixon. The labor people know of the Nasser-Rockefeller conversation--and Nasser's request that this be reported to Mr. Nixon.

It was. So Egypt is another Cuba. Difference is that Israel is not Guantanamo Bay.

The Soviets are there. The American labor leaders well know the meaning of Soviet infiltration. These labor leaders know well the Soviets' respect for power. So the George Meanys, the Teddy Gleasons, and the hard hats want aerial power put in the hands of Israeli pilots, just in case.

Young Man With Homosexual Experience In Past Wonders Should He Tell Fiancee

Dear Ann Landers: When I was 13 (11 years ago) my uncle started a homosexual relationship with me. It lasted until I was nearly 15. One day we were discovered by my father. The next night my uncle killed himself. This caused such an upheaval in our family that I was placed in a foster home.

My foster parents were the finest people God ever put on this earth. Out of their own modest funds they paid for my psychotherapy and put me through college.

I recently became engaged to a wonderful girl. We plan to marry in August. My real parents demand that I tell the girl and her family the whole sordid story of my past. I do not feel it is necessary for them to know. I'm not the same person I was eleven years ago and I see no purpose that could be served by digging up old bones. My fiancee is very naive and her parents are ultra- conservative. They would be shocked to death. My foster parents have begged my folks to stay out of it but they are adamant. What should be done? --- Eric

Dear Eric: Your foster parents may be "the finest people God ever put on this earth" but they are not very realistic. Your fiancee and her folks should be told and you are the one who should tell them -- with your foster parents at your side.

If there had been only the homosexual incident, I would say "keep quiet." But the suicide makes the story spectacular -- one which is sure to be remembered by people who know you and your family. Someone would surely pass the word to your girl and her parents. Then where would you be?

If they cannot accept you after they learn of your background it is best that you know it now.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is one of the greatest guys in the world--but he is becoming an insufferable bore. Reason: We are building a new home and that's all Freddie talks about. He has memorized the dimensions of all the rooms, knows the technical names for mortar mix, wood treatment and termite protection. He draws diagrams and gives lectures of the windows, the air conditioning and the lighting. In brief, he monopolizes every conversation and our friends are sick of it. Last night he hauled the blueprints out of his pocket and spread them on the dinner table. We had six guests and I thought I'd die.

I hate to deflate his ego because this house means a great deal to him. But he's becoming a pain in the ankle. What should I do?--Fed Up

Dear Fed: I can think of few things in this world less interesting than other people's blueprints--unless perhaps it is slides of their trip or movies of their child's birthday party. There are times when a wife must be brutally frank to save a husband from himself. Tell Freddie he is imposing on people and to cut it out. Warn him that if he starts talking about the house again you'll promptly change the subject as an act of mercy. Then do it.

Dear Ann Landers: Big Problem: Last month we entertained several couples in our home. (Most all were executives of the firm.) A few days ago the phone bill came--a staggering $82. I had the calls checked. It seems one of our inebriated guests called a couple of his former secretaries--- one in Honolulu. What should we do? --Mrs.???!!!

Dear???!!!: Send him the bill with a note saying, "You forgot to put this on your credit card."

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet "Marriage--What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Mrs. Cotton was graduated in January from the University with a B.S. in education and will teach in the Memphis Public School system.

Special Church Activities

The Anderson College Drama Quartet will be presenting a program of religious drama at the Tanner Street Church of God in Sikeston at 10:30 a.m., Sunday according to Rev. Vernon Guttenfelder, pastor. The public is invited to attend the admission- free program.

The drama will be one of a repertoire of three dramas, especially written for the sanctuary, which the Quartet will be presenting during its twelve- tweek tour of thirteen states of this country and on six islands of the West Indies.

Members of the group are Kenneth Croch from Anderson, Ind., Alethea Blocker from Bessamer, Alabama; Karen Horner from Hugoton, Kansas; and Errol Beecher from Kingston, Jamaica.

The Drama Quartet is a part of Student Summer Service (TRI-S), a program of Anderson (Ind.) College, which sends 150 volunteers around the world each summer in "Peace- Corps-type" assignments.

In its sixth year, TRI-S has placed some 700 students, largely at their own expense, on six continents in service- educational experiences.

Anderson College is a liberal arts Christian college of 1800 students from 45 states and 12 foreign countries, founded by the Church of God, with headquarters in Anderson, Ind.

Announcing Clinics For Cheerleaders

The 20th Annual Baton Twirling and Cheerleading Clinic will again be held on the beautiful Northeast Missouri State College campus in Kirksville, Missouri June 8 through 12. All phases of cheerleading, baton twirling, majorette work, pom pom drill work and drum majoring will be taught. A great variety of classes are held each hour and students may enroll in one division or combination. This clinic provides an opportunity for those who are interested in these fields to study under a professionally trained teachingstaff.

Registration is open to all ages for all levels from the beginner to the advanced. Students may commute or be campus students and stay in the dormitory.

Daily competition will be held in each division for those wishing to participate. Competition will be based on the new material which the students are learning at the clinic. Ribbons, medals, trophies, Golden Spirit Stick, Golden Baton & Scholarships will be awarded.

The clinic is conducted by Mary Evelyn Thurman, who is on the physical education teaching staff at Northeast Missouri College in the winter and is an internationally known clinic director, teacher & judge. She and staff hold simular clinics on campuses of 12 different during the summer.

For further information write to: All Star Baton Twirling & Cheerleading Clinic, Box 45, Prospect Heights, Ill 60070

Susan Shobe

WIBC Field Rep To Speak In Charleston

Field representatives of the Woman's International Bowling Congress travel thousands of miles annually throughout the United States, offering guidance and counsel to the nearly three million members of the Congress for sanctioned women bowlers.

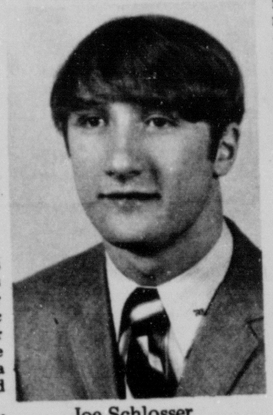

One of the field representatives, Miss Susan Shobe, will visit Charleston on June 16 as a guest of the Charleston Woman's Bowling Association for its 7:30 p.m. forum at the First Security Bank, Main Street.

During her appearance, Miss Shobe will answer questions concerning rules, procedures and policies of WIBC. Miss Shobe will also assist the association in finding answers to locally oriented problems if there seems to be an area of uncertainty.

No official association business will be transacted at the forum. Time permitting, Miss Shobe will offer a slide presentation, discuss the many services of WIBC to its members, the three divisional format of the WIBC Championship Tournament, share information about the American Junior Bowling Congress, the collegiate and senior division programs, promotion plans of the National Bowling Council of which WIBC is a member, WIBC's films and any new plans and projects of WIBC.

The meeting is open to all members of the Charleston Woman's Bowling Associatioand local area Junior Bowling Association officers.

Joe Schlosser

SUBIACO, Ark. (Special) — Joe Schlosser, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Schlosser of Sikeston, was among the 60 seniors receiving their diplomas at the Commencement exercises of Subiaco Academy, May 28.

Schlosser's diploma was presented to him by the Rev. Michael Lensing, O.S.B., President of the boarding Academy where he has been a student the past four years.

Mrs. Hazel Given Award

A special award was presented May 26 to Shirley Hazel, wife of Wesley Hazel, who operated the Hazels Gulf Station in Morley.

The award, a plaque bearing two rare silver dollars, two Kennedy half- dollars, and a specially minted commemorative coin set in an automotive engine design, was presented for exceptional customer service by a representative of The Gates Rubber Company.

The Denver- based rubber company sponsors a nation-wide contest (now in its 38th year) to reward service station personnel who provide exceptional customer service. A fleet of "Gates Mystery Cars" regularly travels across the country stopping at service stations. Each "Mystery Car" has a worn fan belt. Award plaques are presented to station personnel who notice the defective belt and offer to replace it.

Card Battery Provide Power

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Catcher Ted Simmons thought his fondest dream had turned into a nightmare before the St. Louis Cardinals climbed past the San Francisco Giants 6-5 Wednesday night.

Simmons, only last week called up from Tulsa of the American Association, helped the Giants score three runs with a passed ball in the opening inning.

But the switch-hitting 20year-old checked signals with veteran pitcher Bob Gibson and thereafter caught a strong game to help the Cardinals sweep a two-game series.

"For a while there I was wishing I was back in Southfield, Mich., my hometown," Simmons said after the Cardinals rallied from a 5-1 deficit.

"Bob and I weren't together on our signals at the outset, so we called in Joe Torre from third base to do a little interpreting and got things straightened out.

"There is no difference in the signals, really, except that Bob uses an extra signal from what the other pitchers use.

"This game was something special for me. Ever since Monday night I'd been dreaming about catching Bob Gibson. I can tell it's something else."

In the third inning, the Giants wrapped up their scoring on Ken Henderson's single behind an error, a walk and a fielder's choice.

The Cards pecked away at Giant's right-hander Rich Robertson for runs in the bottom of the third and the fourth, however, and were down 5-3 when Richie Allen led off the seventh.

Allen singled off reliever Frank Reberger, Joe Hague drew a one-out walk and Simmons singled, filling the bases.

Pinch hitter Vic Davalillo then delivered a two-run single to tie the game before Leron Lee struck out. Gibson himself then stroked the game-winning hit, a single beyond the reach of Giant first baseman Willie McCovey.

The hits were the third apiece for Simmons and Gibson, who combined to drive in three runs.

"I can't think of any tougher way to win than that," gasped Gibson.

Legion Opener Here Tonight

Sikeston's American Legion Post 114 baseball team will open its season tonight at V.F.W. Stadium against Jackson in a 7 p.m. game. It will kick off a 40 game schedule that will include a Saturday night game at V.F.W. against Paris, Tenn.

Managed by N. P. McDaniel, the Legion squad will consist of 18 area boys between 16 and 19 years old. At present the team has players from Oran, Benton, Parma and Gideon to go along with the Sikeston athletes.

Star high school hurler, Don Miller, who pitched SHS to the regionals of the state baseball tournament, will be on the mound tonight.

Free Agent Draft Begins

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's endless search for new talent focuses today on the annual summer draft of high school and college graduates and 21-year-old unsigned players. The draft will run for two days and over 1,000 young men probably will be picked.

The free agent draft represents baseball's attempt to control the flow of schoolboys with major league potential without going through the wild bonus scramble of earlier years.

Although an occasional schoolboy or college star is able to command $100,000 or more to sign his first pro contract, the vast majority settle for considerably less. Figures show about half of those drafted will sign. The unsigned go back in the pool for future drafts but not by the same team.

Normally the process of moving from high school or college team to the majors involved several years in the minors. In contrast, pro football usually can make immediate use of the college product who thus can demand higher bonus payments.

Four pitchers from the June 1969 draft, when 1,147 players were selected, are currently on big league rosters. They are Don Gullett of Cincinnati, Rich Hand of Cleveland, Bert Blyleven of Minnesota and Balor Moore of Montreal.

They have been drafting free agents only since 1965. Two sessions are held each year, one in June and the other in January for the semester graduates. This is not to be confused with the annual minor league draft when the clubs select other professionals.

San Diego picks first, followed by Cleveland, Montreal, Milwaukee and so on down to the New York Mets, No. 23, and the Baltimore Orioles, No. 24. They draft in reverse order of their 1969 finish, alternating by leagues. As San Diego and Montreal each had a 52-110 record, the commissioner's office flipped a coin and San Diego won the No. 1 pick.

There are two divisions of the draft - the regular phase covering players picked for the first time and the secondary phase, covering players who were drafted previously but did not sign. The order in the secondary phase is determined by lot with San Francisco winning the No. 1 position this June.

Owners Testify

NEW YORK (AP) — If you had the money to invest in a major league sport would you buy a basebal team or a pro football club?

If you answered baseball you are probably being emotional. Purchasing a pro football club involves less financial risk.

That, at least, might be the lesson learned from testimony Wednesday in the Curt Flood case as baseball paraded three club owners to the stand as defense witnesses to support the sport's contention that the reserve system is necessary to its operation.

Two of the owners, Francis Dale of the Cincinnati Reds, and Bob Reynolds of the California Angels, also have been involved in pro football ownership and cited the major difference between the sports as being in the area of player development.

"Investment in pro football team involves less risk," said Dale, who also has an interest in pro football's Cincinnati Bengals, after he had completed testifying.

"The nature of the investment is different - it goes for different things. Pro football doesn't have a farm system to support and there is no lag of three to four years before a player who is signed can make contributions at the major league level."

Dale, Reynolds and John McHale, of the Montreal Expos, all estimated that their clubs would spend approximately $1 million on player development and acquisition this season and needed the safeguard of the reserve sysm to assure a return to their investment.

Dale said on the stand he didn't think baseball could operate successfully with pro football's contract clause in which a player can play out his option and become a free agent.

City Leagues Beat Rain

City League Baseball opened its 1970 season last night. The previous two- day - long rainfall slackened long enough for three of the Leagues to play. The Sr. Babe Ruth, Musial and National Leagues all completed their two opening games, while the American division opens tonight, and the Jr. Babe Ruth next week.

In the opening contest in the Sr. Babe Ruth Division, Hart's Standard collected 13 runs off of 6 hits and defeated Leible Implement 13-1. Gary Vaught picked up the win for Hart's Standard, as he allowed only one run off of five hits. Richard Howard led the squad at the plate, as the slugger knocked in two runs off of two hits in three attempts at the plate.

David Hampton carried the bat for Leible, as the centerfielder collected two hits, one a double,and scored the teams only run. Hensley, Hei, and Moore collected the teams other hits, each scattered singles. Danny Hei took the loss for Lieble as numerous errors faultered his bid for the win.

In the night- cap, the Elks collected seven runs in the last inning to move past Lindsey's M&H 8-6. The Elks collected only four hits in the encounter, but managed to scoot seven runners across the plate off of relief hurler, David Newberry. Danny Watkins collected one of the Elks three hits, a double, and crossed the plate twice. Buddy Vaughn and Benny Britt collected the other two hits.

For the M & H-ers, Randy Reynolds led the batting attack with two hits as the catcher collected half of the squads four hits. Craig and Breedlove each had the remaining singles.

Ed McDowell picked up the win for the Elks, while Newberry suffered the loss, after relieving starter Bob Blankenship.

In the National League opener at Puckett Field last night, Kiwanis blanked the Lions 11-0, and captured the leagues first victory. In the second encounter, A & B Oil picked up a 17-4 win over Legion.

In the first game, Kiwanis picked up eight hits, and behind the pitching of Shaffar, held the Lions scoreless. Deal and Nunnelee carried the bats for the Kiwanis club, as they both collected two hits. One of Deals hits was the League's first Home Run.

Lee suffered the loss for the Lions, as his squad was held to only two hits. Wheeler and white combined for the Lions only two hits.

In the nightcap, A & B picked up their 17-4, four-inning win over Legion. Legion jumped ahead early in the game as they picked up four runs in the first, but were held scoreless the rest of the game. Ron Friday picked up the win for the Oilers, while White added the nights second Home Run, and went three for four at the plate. Davidson collected a double and single to add to the offence of the Oilers.

Legion could only collect four hits, one off of Griffin, Lenderman Seller, and Lawrence. Bean took the loss for the Legion, and was later relieved by Lawrence.

MAGGIE VALLEY, N. C. — This place is so far back in the hills that the sun sets between here and the nearest town.

Maggie Valley isn't a valley at all. It's the top of a mountain. And, friend, I mean a mountain. The road up to Ghost Town would put the off-road race down the Baja Peninsula out of business. Ghost Town itself is unreal. Its few hundred residents live in the days of Jesse James and the Dalton boys.

The whole reason for being here is to say howdy to an old friend. His name is Pal Parker. Now that won't set off any bells ringing inside the minds of most people butcloseto 40-million pair of eyes looked at a racing picture of some kind that was taken last year by none other than Pal Parker.

He's been seen more at race tracks across the country than the checker flag. He looks like a cross between Al Hirt and Gargantua and carries more equipment strapped to his body than a Borax mule team.

Race fans remember Pal Parker for years and forget who won the race. He's worked his camera in more pits at a race track than any chief mechanic in the sport. He's been in vicotry lane more than any driver. His racing pictures have been everywhere a picture can be printed. Trouble is, most people never know when they're looking at a Parker photograph because pictures don't carry a by-line.

Pal started out by selling programs at the old beach and road course in Datona Beach, Florida during the February Speed Weeks when he was a kid. He's been a race car owner, official, promoter, complainer, thief, and friend. If it has to dowith racing, Parker has taken a picture of it.

"The life of anyone connected with professional sports, and especially automobile racing, appears to be a pretty glamorous one," said Parker. "But last year I was gone 115 nights. I drive to all of the races mainly because there is so much equipment that a photographer has to take along. I put close to 50,000 miles on my VW bus.

"Auto racing has changed so quickly over the past several years that it's hard to keep up with it," continued Pal. "You really notice it when you spend all of your time recording the sport on film. I can go pull pictures out of my file that were taken just several years ago and place them along side of today's shots and you can't believe what you see.

"Racing is attracting more fans every day and a good number of them are getting involved for the very first time.They don't know what it was like in the old days. That's one reason I'm glad we've got pictures to remind us of what it used to be. Today, auto racing is big money. It's wearing a white shirt and tie instead of a tee shirt."

Pal Parker lives in the mountains of North Carolina. By instinct, he finds his way out every week to attend a major event in the sport of speed. His full beard and handlebar mustache are as much a part of racing as a helmet and ggles. He's auto racing's historian. He's the sports link with the past and recorder of the future. Pal's one of the many people who live for the sport and make it what it is.

House Subcommittee Opens Hearings Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House agriculture subcommittee opens hearings next week on a proposal to ban the importation of foods treated with pesticides restricted in the United States.

Agriculture Committee chairman W.R. Poage, D-Tex., sponsor of the bill, said today the prohibition is designed to protect consumers from possible health dangers and eliminate unfair economic competition from abroad.

"It would be illogical and unacceptable to provide consumers with only partial protection from whatever dangers may be inherent in using certain pesticides," said Poage.

"If it is determined that a chemical is detrimental to a person's health, then he should not be exposed to it on foods grown in either this country or abroad."

In addition, Poage said, it would be unfair to restrict domestic farmers' use of some pesticides while allowing competitive items in from overseas without the same limits.

He noted competition from abroad is already severe because laborers in other lands are paid less than U.S. workers.

He said his bill would prohibit imports of foods from any country unless the President has determined the nation involved enforces antipesticide restrictions at least equal to those applicable in the United States.

The hearings qill begin Monday before a subcommittee chaired by Rep. Eligio de la Garza, D-Tex.

Cosmonauts Near End of 3rd Day

MOSCOW (AP) Cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastyanov neared the end of a third seemingly routine day in orbit today, strengthening the general view that their space flight is a workhorse operation to perfect maneuvers that have not gone well before.

Tass said the spaceship Soyuz 9 completed its 38th orbit of the earth this morning, the two crewmen fulfilled the program of their third day in flight, and the cosmonauts "carried out medical control and passed to the orbital compartment for rest."

Having been launched Monday night, Moscow time, the cosmonauts sleep for eight hours of the Russian day.

Pravda published an interview today with the designer of Soyuz 9, who said it was making an experimental flight ... to perfect the systems that will be used in future spaceships and orbital stations and to test new systems. Another task is to determine the optimum correlation between the abilities of man and the possibilities of automatic equipment."

$268,211 Spent for Welfare

NEW MADRID — County recipients of assistance from various funds disbursed by the New Madrid County Welfare Office for May were paid $268,210.62. The greatest went to those on the old age assistance list.

John M. Underwood, Sr., director, reported there were 1554 on the old age assistance rolls and they received a total of $114,591.00. The average checks was $73.74.

A total of 691 New Madrid county families with 1934 children received $79,233 in the Aid to Dependent Children category and received an average of $114.66 per family check.

Two hundred and forty six persons received permanent and total disability assistance totalling $17,092.00 and the average check per month was $69.48.

New Madrid county had 78 persons on the Aid for the Blind list and each received $90.00 per month for a total of $7,020.00.

From general relief funds 260 families of 284 persons received a total of $17,875.00 or an average check of $62.94 per person.

A total of $31,933.37 was expended under the vendor programs for all categories of assistance. There were the hospital, and nursing home vendor programs.

There were 71 children under child welfare supervision.

Services were given to 71 children and service was completed to 12 children, leaving a caseload of 59 at the end of the month. Of these children now being given services, 42 are in the homes of their parents or residing with relatives, 10 are in foster boarding homes, 3 are in adoptive homes, 4 are in non-relative homes.

Amount spent for room and board, clothing, medicine, dental care, and incidentals for the children under Child Welfare Supervision from the New Madrid County Court for the month was $240.97. Amount expended from State Boarding Funds was $225.28.

Grant to Aid Two Workshops

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The department of business administration and business education at Southeast Missouri State College has received a $4,000 grant to conduct two workshops this summer, the head of the department, Dr. Gene Loftis, has announced.

Dr. Loftis said the grant from business and office education section of the Missouri State Department of Education provides funds for workshops entitled "Analysis of Business Occupations."

One workshop will be conducted on the Southeast Missouri State campus June 8-June 19. The other will be held at O'Fallon Technical High School in St. Louis June 22-July 3. Participants may earn two hours of graduate credit.

Director of both workshops will be Dr. Louise Reddick, associate professor of business administration and business education at Southeat Missouri State.

Dr. Loftis said, "The focus of the workshops will be on obtaining first-hand information concerning occupational requirements, training, and availability of employment for office employees. Office visits, on-the-job analyses, and interviews with businessmen will highlight each workshop."

He continued, "One of the major purposes of the workshops will be to give teachers of business education courses a good 'on-the-job' look at the actual responsibilities and experiences that the college or high school graduate encounters when he or she walks into the business firm."

Each workshop will include a field trip to selected businesses in the St. Louis area, Dr. Loftis said.

Dr. Reddick has had broad experience in both business and education. She has a bachelor's degree from Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, a master's degree from the University of Texas in Austin, and a dectorate from North Texas State University in Denton.

Reason for Acceptance

SOS, the internationally accepted call for help from a ship in distress, was chosen because it was convenient to send on the early wireless transmitters.

Symptons of Recession Found in Seattle, county

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)— It's beer instead of cocktails at night clubs, businessmen go out to lunch more often but stay home at night and apartment "for rent" signs are as thick as evergreen trees.

These are the symptoms of recession in Seattle and surrounding King County, home for about 1.1 million persons, where the Boeing Co. is king.

Airplanes are to Seattle what gambling is to Las Vegas. When Boeing business is down, everybody feels the pinch.

The restaurant and night club business is typical.

"People are tipping less and instead of drinking cocktails, they're ordering beer," complains a downtown bartender.

"And instead of two or three, they'll have one and out the door they go."

Luncheon business has jumped in the city's restaurants, according to Stephanie Slater of the State Restaruant Association. At the same time, she said, there's been a decline in evening trade.

"Businessmen evidently are still going out to lunch with clients and business associates, maybe on expense accounts, but not spending money at home to take the wife and kids out," she said.

The Boeing Co., which delivered 56 jets in the first quarter of 1970 compared with 96 during the same period last year, has laid off about 20,000 workers since Jan. 1. During all of last year Boeing laid off 14,400. The firm's payroll now stands at 60,700.

There are about 2¼ times more people out of work here now then at this time in 1969. The State Department of Employment Security put the April unemployment figure at 50,700 for the Greater Seattle area.

The empoyment drop has apartment owners and operators in a tizzy.

It's a renters' market. Inducements to attract tenants include free use of color television and stereos, a month's free rent for lease-signers and some lowering of rents.

A recent survey in the Seattle-King County area showed one out of every six apartments vacant. The figure was estimated to be 25,000, a 15-month high.

Boeing executives are pinning their hopes for an upswing on a bill now pending in Congress which would provide $290 million for construction of a supersonic transport prototype.

Boeing's net earnings for the first three months of 1970 were $6.8 million, down from the $14.02 million the first quarter of 1969.

Three Liquor Licenses Revoked In Caruthersville

CARUTHERSVILLE— Liquor licenses of three Caruthersville business licensees were revoked, effective Monday by the Missouri Department of Liquor Control.

The establishments- Casanova Lounge, licensed to Ed C. Chilton and Modene Gatewood; Eddie and Jay's, licensed to Modene Gatewood and Ed C. Chilton; and The Sportster, licensed to John A. Johnson, Jr., were notified yesterday of the revocation of the licenses by liquor control supervisor Harry Wiggins.

On March 6, supervisor Wiggins conducted hearings for the three businesses on various liquor charges, and took the cases under advisement, until yesterday, when his decision was made public.

The Casanova licensees were charged with unlawful selling for resale; Eddie and Jay's for unlawful refill of containers and unlawful selling for resale; and the Sportster, for unlawful purchase from other than a licensed wholesaler; unlawful selling; failure to post license and unlawful selling for resale.

In accordance with Missouri statutes, the revoked licensees have 15 days to file an appeal with the supervisor of liquor control on the revocations.

Another liquor charge against the Climax Buffet, also licensed to Mrs. Gatewood, is still pending, and another hearing date has been set for June 12 in Cape Girardeau for an unlawful selling after hours.

The revocations were among the last items of business for Wiggins, who served his last day as supervisor yesterday Effective today, William D. Wright, Jr. is acting supervisor of the liquor control department.

Lung Collapses At Meeting

DEXTER— Bill Evans, employee of Dexter Cut Rate Drugs, is a patient in he Southeast Missouri Hospital, Cape Girardeau. Evans was hospitalized last Thursday after his lung collapsed while he ws was attending a Methodist Men's Breakfast at the Hickory House.

The tube was removed from his chest Saturday and the lung collapsed again Saturday night. A breathing machine is being used to strengthen his lung, it was learned Monday, and it is expected he will be hospitalized most of this week.

Cape Offering Music Workshop

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A non-credit, short-term workshop entitled "Music Experiences for Early Childhood" will be held June 29-July 1 at Southeast Missouri State College.

Dr. Willard J. Morgan, director of school services at the college, said the workshop "is designed to assist teachers of young children, ages 4-6, to improve basic music skills, to enlarge knowledge of appropriate music activities, including songs, rhythms, and games, and to learn new sources of books and recorded materials for use in their classes."

Dr. Morgan said the workshop will be geared to the non-specialist in music and added that no previous music training will be required to participate.

The workshop will be directed by Dr. John Shelton, associate professor of music at Southeast Missouri State. The sessions will be conducted in the air-conditioned Music Buildin. Sessions during the three-day period will run daily from 9:30--:30 a.m. and 2-4 p.m.

One of the sessions will feature a demonstration of music acitivities with kindergarten children.

Washington Report

SYMINGTON URGES MORE EFFORTS FOR RURAL DEVELOPMENT

WASHINGTON, D.C. Many problems in America today such as crime and pollution can be traced in part to the conditions created by an unbalanced distribution of population across our land. During the last century, we have observed the growth of concentrations of people in our great cities, while the population in the countryside has steadily declined.

One need only examine census data for our state which shows that, with the exception of Adair, Audrain, Boone, Buchanan,Clay, Marion, and St. Charles counties, every county north of the Missouri River has lost population in the years between 1890 and 1960. In this respect, with fewer and fewer people in the rurai counties, and more and more people in our urban centers, the cost of providing adequate public services is becoming, and in some cases has already become, prohibitive.

When we recognize that we must accomodate 100 million additional Americans expected by the year 2000, efforts to restore a reasonable population balance in our nation are vitally necessary. One important key to restoring the rural-urban balance must be increased rural development. In March the President's Task Force on Rural Development published its first report. Among its recommendations are:

--Exploring the feasibility of using investment tax credits for attracting new industry to non-metropolitan areas.

--Creation of a rural development bank.

--Increasing the pace of water resourced development.

--Conducting a long range study of the need for balanced population growth.

This is the fourth task force report on rural development to be delivered to the White House since 1966. All of these reports have stressed the need for action. However, it is regrettable that so few of the recommendations suggested in these reports have been adequately implemented.

COMBAT FOREST FIRES. In a statement I made recently to a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee I spoke in support of increased efforts to combat forest fires in Missouri and across the nation.

Although progress has been made in the prevention and control of forest fires in Missouri in the last twenty years, wildfire still destroys a lot of Missouri timber. At the present, fire kills an average of 6 million cubic feet of growing stock including 20 million board feet of sawtimber each year in the state -- roughly five percent of the saw timber cut annually. These figures do not begin to measure the effects in terms of retarded growth, reduced quality, and the widespread decay of timber due to the invasion of fire-caused heart-rotting fungi.

Missourians are deeply interested in protecting and developing our forest and are concerned that the Administrations Budget request for U. S. Forest Service Cooperative State an Private Forest Fire Control is only $14,396,000. This is $2,000,000 less than was appropriated in fiscal year 1970. In addition, although the law authorizes up to 50 percent Federal funding of cooperative fire prevention operations in each state, in the Missouri forest fire program the Federal share of the total cost has decreased from 21 percent in 1964-65 to 17 percent in 1968-69. In light of escalating labor, equipment, and reforestation costs, full funding of this law would mean increased Federal participation, and therefore, more effective forest fire control.

WHY IS THE TOTEM POLE SIGNIFICANT?

Many Indians feel they are descendants of some mythical animal. They carve totem poles with images of such animals as a badge of identification with their clan.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Patch in Time Saves Slacks

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering both Mrs. H. G. and Mrs. J.W. regarding ironing patches on clothes. I use them liberally and apply them to the wrong side of the material when it becomes thin. instead of waiting for a real hole to appear. I use them on both knees and elbows and especially on my husband's slacks. A patch in time has saved many a shirt and pair of slacks and there is no worry about matching colors when they are applied on the wrong side.

Like another reader, I have a mouton coat. Mine is 20 years old and really looks almost new, even though the lining is now due for a replacement. I have it stored each summer and cleaned professionally when necessary. If badly soiled, this may be done every year but usually every two or three years is sufficient.—MARY MARGARET

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Our school in Oakland is trying to find new ideas for fund raising. We are now selling handcrafted items and would like suggestions for something to do with nonreturnable bottles that might help us sell them and help with the ecology problem, too.—LISA

DEAR POLLY—I find the Pointers helpful and have clipped and saved quite a few but have never received or heard of anyone who did receive a dollar for one. I hope the following will do it: When saving washing instructions for a garment or item, I cut a tiny swatch from the inner facing or from a seam edge and glue this to the instruction tag. This eliminates guessing which washing tip goes with which dress, sweater or whatever—MRS. W. S.

MRS. W. G.—You now know of someone who has received a Polly Dollar.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have just decorated an attic room that will be used as a child's room. I could not afford to carpet it, so used eight carpet tiles left over from the playroom to make a slide-proof bedside throw rug. The adhesive is on the back of each of these tiles so they stick to the floor. For extra fun, I am gluing wool fringe around the edges. —CHARLOTTE

Harlow Speaks At Conference

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — "You cannot painlessly de-fever an economy," Bryce Harlow, cabinet rank counselor to President Nixon, said Tuesday.

He spoke of Nixon's efforts to curb inflation, the stock market decline and the nation's economy at the concluding session of a three-day Missouri Retailers Association conference.

Harlow said the Republican party traditionally "takes over to put out wars and fix up the economy and said Nixon was doing just that. He called recent stock market trends mere gyrations.

He said campus unrest was caused, in his opinion, by physical size of modern colleges and universities — so big individuality is lost. He said Nixon was solving student complaints through draft reforms, ending the war in Vietnam and supporting the 18-year-old vote.

Harlow was slated to leave today for a tour of Vietnam and Cambodia. He called it a fact finding tour.

46 Graduate from Bloomfield High

BLOOMFIELD — Forty-six members of the 1970 graduating class of Bloomfield high school received diplomas of graduation at the annual commencement exercises in the schoo auditorium.

Diplomas were awarded by High School Principal Dewair Ward following the valedictory address given by James B Holifield. The concert choi presented musical selections "Let There Be Peace on Earth" and "Halls of Ivy." The choir was under the direction of George Bates, high school music director.

Debbie Denton presented a vocal solo, "The Impossible Dream;" she was accompanied by Jim Holifield. The gospel quartet, Terry Bowling, Lloyd Holland, Richard Kyle, and Bob Wilcox, presented two selections. The Rev. Sterling Aubuchon and the Rev. Jimmy Trotter gave the invocation and the benediction.

Supt. R. E. Sharp awarded scholarships and special awards to members of the graduating class. These scholarships were made possible through the efforts of the civic organizations, private business, and the colleges.

Recipients of these scholarships were:

Holifield, valedictorian, received the regents scholarship from the Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau. He will attend college there where he plans a major in music.

Patti Bennett, salutatorian, received a general scholarship from Southeast Missouri State, where she plans to follow a major in business education.

The Bank of Bloomfield presented its $200 scholarship to Linda Myrick, who will enroll in the Manpower Business Training Institute, St. Louis, to take training in data processing.

The Bloomfield Parent-Teachers Association presented its $100 scholarship to Richard Kyle.

Steve Tippen was awarded the Bloomfield High School Alumni Association scholarship of $100. He will attend Central Methodist College, Fayette, and will major in social studies.

Terry Bowling was the recipient of the AMVETS Auxiliary scholarship of $100.

The Junior Federated Club chose Jeanne Harper to receive its $100 scholarship. She plans to attend Southeast Missouri State, where she will major in women's physical education.

The Community Scholarship, made up of the American Legion Auxiliary, the Senior Federated Club, the Soroptimist Club, and the Scholarship Council, presented its $100 scholarship to Marvin Lafferty. Marvin plans to attend the Manpower Business Training Institute, St. Louis, to train as a computer programmer.

Scientists Required to Have Political Clearance For Advisory Committees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has confirmed it requires what amounts to political clearance for scientists appointed to important government advisory committees.

Frederic V. Malek, deputy undersecretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, confirmed in part reports from career government officials and scientists that the administration has injected an unusual degree of partisanship into selections for policy advisory committees.

"It is important to the secretary and the management of the department to have certain appointees to these committees reflect his philosophies and represent his interests," Malek said.

The committees - covering areas from air pollution to alcoholism, heart disease and cancer - help shape the policy direction of critical scientific programs.

Appointments to strictly technical, nonpolicy advisory committees are apparently not subject to the political checks.

Career program managers complain of "low batting averages" in placing scientists they deem qualified on their advisory committees.

Recently, antipollution officials had all five of their nominees for the Air Quality Advisory Board rejected by the Nixon administration, sources said. Five different men were appointed, three of them employes of industry.

Some scientists, in turn, report they have been denied advisory posts by the Republican admisistration because they are Democrats.

Malek was asked recently by Rep. John S. Monagan, D-Conn., chairman of the House government operations subcommittee, whether scientist-nominees to the committees are screened to determine their sympathies "to what you are trying to do or accomplish in your administration."

"That is correct," Malek replied.

Knowledgeable HEW officials say such political screening was unusual in past administrations.

"There was a certain cronism of scientists on the committee trying to get their friends aboard but no screening for politics," said one official.

Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, assistant HEW secretary for health, confirmed the political checks in an interview.

The screening, he agreed in response to a question, is particularly difficult because most scientists qualified and interested in committee posts are liberal Democrats connected with major universities.

Bloomfield Woman Places in Contest

BLOOMFIELD — Mrs. Louise Tirmenstein was named fourth-place winner in a national short story contest sponsored by the National Writers Club of Denver, Colo.

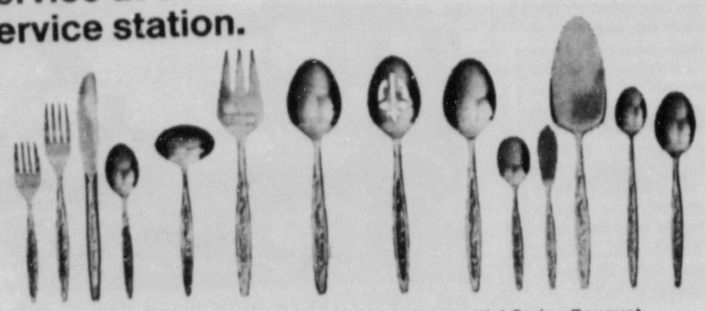

Mrs. Tirmenstein's story "Poor Cupid Lies Dead," was praised by the contest judges for its "skillful handling and its appealing style."

She began writing about 10 years ago, beginning with the short-short story form because she felt it was "good discipline." She said a course in short-short story writing offered by the Writer's Digest was "very valuable."

Mrs. Tirmenstein has written several short stories. "In order to test them, I entered several contests," she said, "I won a prize from the Writer's Digest on my first try."

For the past three years she has submitted entries in the annual National Writers Club contest.

Keep your budget balanced

You want a building you can be proud of. Good looking. Functional. Serviceable. And tailored to your needs.

But you need to know what it's going to cost to build. And to maintain.

So we have a suggestion. Instead of letting somebody else build you a building the ordinary way, why not let us build you a building the Butler way.

We'll put you in a beautiful building exactly suited to your needs. We'll tell you what it's going to cost before we start. And you can be sure of low, long-term maintenance costs, too.

That's because we build Butler buildings around components designed and manufactured to work together. They're proven building systems. Which means that performance of the structure—and many of our building costs—are already established.

If sticking to your building budget without cutting corners is something you're looking for, give us a call. We're your Butler Builder®.

Let us build you a Butler Building

Armed with Pencils, IRS Agents Dog Tax Dodgers

By MARY ELLEN RIDDLE
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Richard Nossen leaned back in the chair and crossed his arms contentedly.

"Our tax system," he said, "is a voluntary one. This is the only country I know of where almost everybody pays his taxes without someone coming to collect them."

Nossen has a good reason for being happy about the way Americans respond to the annual letter from the Internal Revenue Service: He is one of the men responsible for finding the people who don't pay their taxes.

He works in a monolithic building here (so big that each of the hallways is painted in a different brilliant headache-causing color so the employes don't get lost) as a staff assistant in the intelligence division of IRS.

"Maybe it's not voluntary in the sense that people want to pay their taxes," he admitted after a little prodding about fines and prisons, "but we have to go out and collect only 3 per cent of all federal taxes. The rest just comes in."

Collecting that 3 per cent is what keeps 1,800 Internal Revenue special agents busy. According to Nossen, their work assures honest taxpayers that the people who are not paying their share don't get away with it.

These pencil-pushing James Bonds comb newspaper articles, convince unwary secretaries to hand over financial records, subpoena bank account records and lurk in bushes, looking for proof that their suspects are making more money than shows up on their tax forms.

And they get into some weird situations.

Like figuring out how much money a house for shady ladies was making by multiplying the average cost for services by the number of towels delivered to the house each day.

Or placing a series of bets to bust a bookie.

Their work leads the agents into the underworld because criminals involved in illegal businesses do not report the profits they make from gambling, drug sales, prostitution, extortion, murder and arson. But these ill-gotten gains are income and subject to taxation.

That's how it happened, back in the '30s, that Elliot Ness, an IRS agent, got Al Capone on tax evasion when police had been unable to prove his connection with anything else.

In many IRS cases, the only crime involved is the tax evasion itself. All kinds of people, Nossen said, from doctors and lawyers to maids and headwaiters, have been convicted of cheating on their taxes.

Ironically, most of their leads into the most scrupulously disguised evasions come from the daily newspapers.

Agents check to see if the man who reported that $50,000 was taken from a wall safe in his home reported an income that large. And they want to know why he didn't keep such a large sum in a bank.

Nossen held up a sharpened pencil. "This is our ultimate weapon," he said. Proof of tax evasion is usually found by examining ledgers, adding long columns of figures and looking for erasures or other suspicious alterations in financial records."

That's how they caught a doctor who had been working on his books as well as his patients for 10 years. The agents found that more than $90,000 had been "lost" somewhere between the doctor's wallet and his ledger book.

They've got a computer that discovered one taxpayer who had filed 130 returns in 33 states. If he had gotten away with it, the man would have received $43,000 in illegal refunds.

Only about 2,500 cases get the full investigation treatment from IRS each year. And of that number only 1,000 to 1,400 are recommended for prosecution. The IRS has to be very sure it's right before taking a case to court. The cases investigated and prosecuted are selected from the widest variety of professions, locations and income brackets possible.

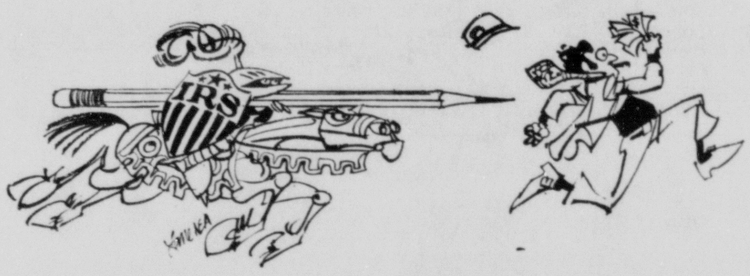

"Our goal," Nossen said, "is to make people continue to voluntarily pay their taxes. Our goal is to scare the most people."

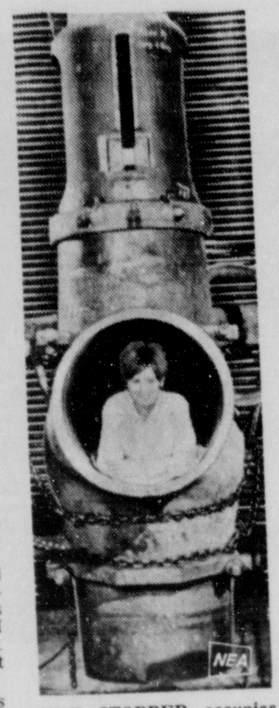

He thought about the statement for a few seconds. "Maybe you should say our goal is to achieve the highest level of deterrence."

Nossen doesn't think there is any way even he could get away with tax evasion.

"Ten years ago you could have done it with a numbered account in a Swiss bank," he said. "But now, I wouldn't feel so secure. We're finding ways to get around that, too."

But in line with IRS's policy of keeping people scared, he wouldn't say how.

EYE STOPPER occupies plant stopper. A young woman relaxes in a 16,000-pound globe valve used for emergency drop tight shut-off of very high-pressure, high-temperature steam. The 28-inch Rockwell valve is more than 16 feet high and will be installed in a nuclear power plant.

WINTER WONDERLAND — Spt James Miller (front) and Spt Rafael Naviera, Jr. patrol a section of Alaska's rugged wilderness north of Anchorage during a field training exercise. The soldiers of B Company, 1st Battalion, 60th Infantry, 172d Infantry Brigade battled a simulated enemy and below zero temperatures while perfecting cold weather combat techniques. Specialist Miller is from Cosby, Tenn., and Specialist Naviera is from New York City.

1970 Army Wife of the Year

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Mrs. Gussie S. Sanford, wife of Lt. Col. Albert Sanford, Headquarters, 3d Armored Division in Frankfurt, Germany, has been selected as the 1970 Army Wife of the Year and will represent the Army in the Military Wife of the Year program to be conducted in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Sanford

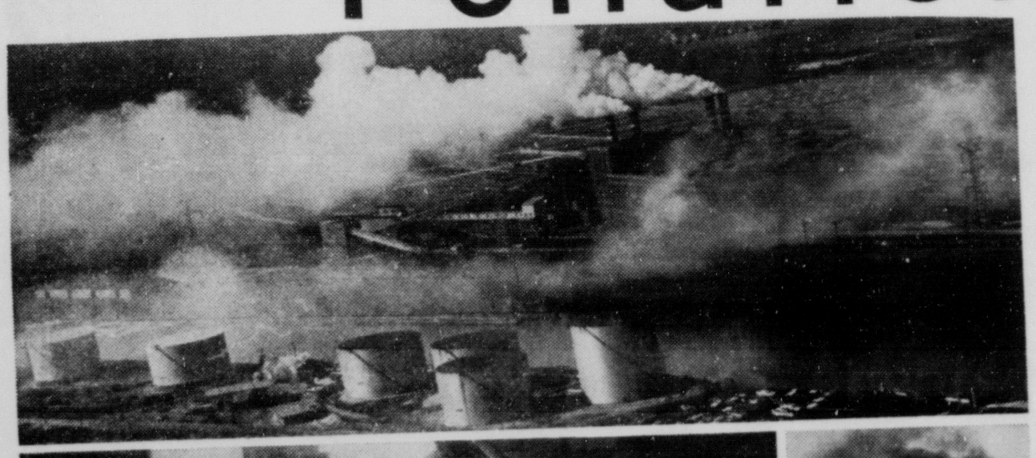

Mrs. Betty Earleywine, wife of Maj. Gene A. Earleywine, assigned to the 1st Special Forces Group (Airborne) in Okinawa was the runner-up.

Mrs. Sanford, a former teacher and mother of five children, has been active in German-American affairs and has fostered an informal person-to-person diplomacy among her German neighbors. She is a leading member of the Steuben-Schurz Gesselschraft, a German-American society, and an honorary member of the Haus der Volksarbeit, a German-Catholic women's organization in Frankfurt. She is also president of the Military Council of Catholic Women, an international organization involved in all phases of life in the civilian community as well as the military one.

The 1970 Army selection panel consisted of the wives of top officials in Department of the Army. They were: Mrs. Stanley R. Resor, Mrs. Thaddeus R. Beal, Mrs. William C. Westmoreland and Mrs. George W. Dunaway. Mrs. Winant Sidle, wife of the Army's Chief of Information, was coordinator for the panel's activity.

Selection for the title is based on active participation in local community and civic affairs, and contributions to the improvement of people-to-people relationships.

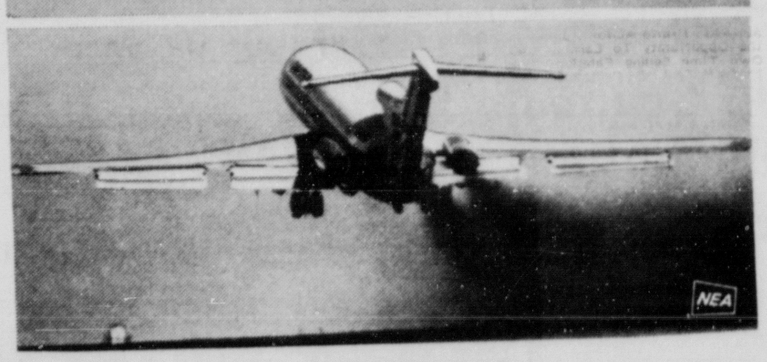

Pollution... and some steps in the right direction

Modified jet engines on 727, top photo above, emit virtually no smoke on take-off as compared with plane equipped with standard engines, bottom. In response to government pressure to cut down air pollutants from jet aircraft, the airline industry is spending millions to reduce smoke emissions from its fleets.

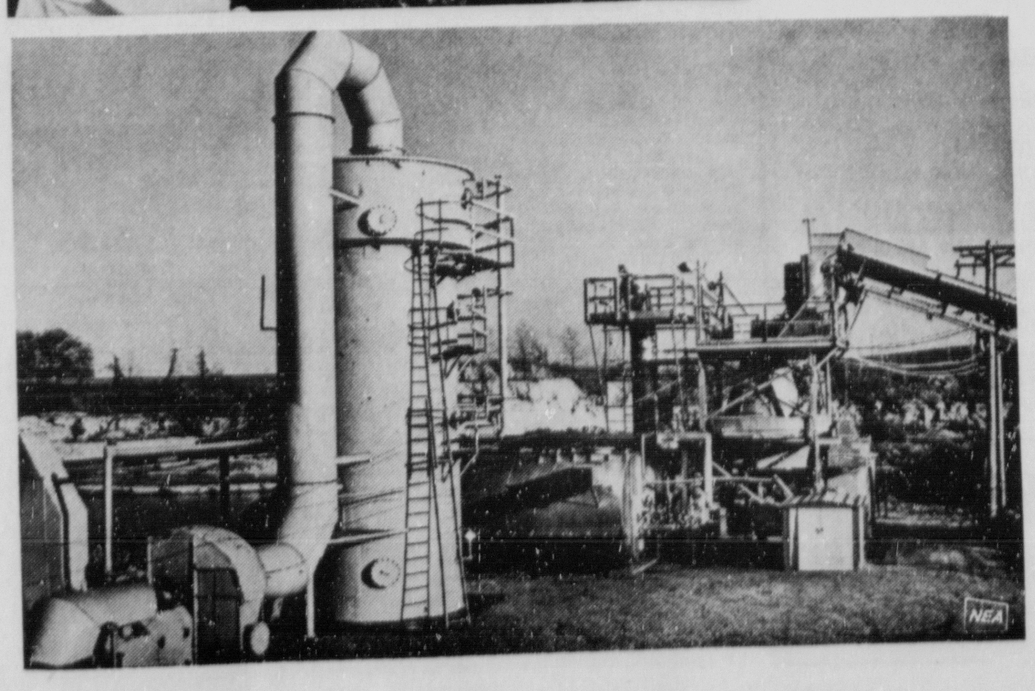

Auto emission is blamed for a major portion of U.S. air pollution and auto makers have taken on the problem. At left, Detroit technicians in a test laboratory measure and record air-polluting emissions produced by auto being "driven" on a chassis dynamometer.

HIS CUP RUNNETH OUT? Robert Dick is the U.S. government's only full-time teataster, but chances that he'll keep his job look slim. Busy at work in his Brooklyn, N.Y., office, Dick demonstrates one aspect of his job which government cutbacks in spending are almost sure to eliminate.

Glass containers, salvaged from refuse and litter, may find a new use as paving material. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution, examines a block of paving that utilizes crushed glass from used bottles as aggregate. The glasphalt block was lifted from a parking lot in Toledo, Ohio, where process is being tested.

Experimental incinerator is turning trash into a harmless, odorless gas. New process, called pyrolysis, entails burning a substance in the absence of oxygen. Tests at St. Louis, Mo., have been termed encouraging.

Circuit Court

BENTON: These CRIMINAL CASES were heard here recently:

State vs. J. D. Crider, BURGLARY & STEALING.

Defendant in Court with his attorney, waives formal arraignment and enters a plea of GUILTY to the charges.

HE is sentenced to 3 yrs. on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently. He is placed on probation, without supervision.

State vs. R. A. Jones, UTTERING FORGED CHECK.

Defendant in Court with his attorney, and having previously entered a plea of GUILTY, he is sentenced to 3 yrs. in State Dept. of Corrections, then is placed on probation, on these conditions. 1 - Pay the costs, 2-make restitution, 3- not drink intoxicants, 4- not to associate with J. C. Rose, 5- abide by rules and regulations of Probation Officer, 6- File bond in sum of $200.00.

State vs. J. J. Swift, AUTO THEFT.

Defendant in Court, without an attorney, so Court appoints one to defend him. He enters a plea of guilty and is sentenced to a year in the County jail.

He is placed on probation for 1 yr. on conditions: Obey the law and pay cost, other than jail time.

State vs. Maurice Mitchelll, GRAND JURY INDICTMENT.

Case dismissed on Motion of State; costs ordered certified.

State vs. B. L. Sullivan, GRAND JURY INDICTMENT.

Same as above case.

If You Were the Judge

Suicide Is Matter Of Individual Intent

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Suzy decided to commit suicide. She turned on the jets in her oven and went to sleep on a nearby couch. An hour later, she awoke with a change ofheart and turned off the gas jets, thankful that she was still in her apartment and not in heaven. And, as she reflected upon her near folly, she lit the burner under her kettle, intending to have a cup of tea.

The result? The burner ignited the gas that was still in the room and Suzy was blown helta- skelta in the ensuing explosion. Landing in a hospital, Suzy filed a claim under an accident policy for the injuries she suffered.

"Sorry, lady," she was told, "but under your policy, there is no coverage for injuries received as the result of an attempted suicide."

"I wasn't attempting suicide when the explosion occurred," retorted Suzy. "I was attempting to have a cup of tea. The explosion was a pure accident. Therefore, I'm entitled to collect."

When no payment was forthcoming, Suzy took her claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the insurance company pay off on the accident policy?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that Suzy's injuries were accidental since she had not intended to commit suicide by blowing herself up. At the time of the explosion, the suicide attempt was over. Thus, the suicide clause did not bar her recovery. (Based upon a 1958 Iowa Supreme Court Decision)

Many a drunk driver will go out of his way for you.
It's not hard to see how each year, problem drinkers are involved in killing at least 25,000 of us on our highways. When people lose control drinking, they often lose control driving.
But what is hard to see is why we keep letting them. Many problem drinkers need to be helped. But first, they need to be taken off the road. Sooner or later, it has to happen. Make it sooner. KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY

Howard Kershner Edward Rowe

In his annual report to Congress on the state of the economy, President Nixon called for an end to inflation and the erosion of the dollar, a balanced budget, stability of prices, the preservation of the free market economy and equal opportunity for all.

The nation will approve of these objectives.

Certain statements in the address, however, seem to us very puzzling. For instance:

"Our purpose has been to slow down the rapid expansion of demand firmly and persistently . . ."

Wouldn't it be better to put the emphasis on supplying the goods and services to meet the demand? Surely, there is nothing wrong about people wanting more things. What is needed is to maintain balance between the various groups of producers so that what one offers will readily exchange in the marketplace for what others are offering. Provided balanced relationships are maintained,—there is no limit to what people can have except their willingness to work hard enough to produce the goods and services they desire.

Let's not limit demand—let's meet it—and all of us enjoy higher living standards!

The President states, as if it were something desirable, that in 1970 we may expect ". . . continuation of a low rate of growth of sales, production and employment . . ."

We do not believe this is necessary. Freedom in the marketplace, without government intervention on behalf of any group, would maintain the balance that would keep the markets clear and permit a steady growth in production, employment and total output of goods and services. If this principle were recognized and followed, we could all work all the time, dispose of our goods and services readily, and have as much of the good things of life as our efforts would provide.

When no payment was forthcoming, Suzy took her claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the insurance company pay off on the accident policy?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that Suzy's injuries were accidental since she had not intended to commit suicide by blowing herself up. At the time of the explosion, the suicide attempt was over. Thus, the suicide clause did not bar her recovery. (Based upon a 1958 Iowa Supreme Court Decision)

Many a drunk driver will go out of his way for you.
It's not hard to see how each year, problem drinkers are involved in killing at least 25,000 of us on our highways. When people lose control drinking, they often lose control driving.
But what is hard to see is why we keep letting them. Many problem drinkers need to be helped. But first, they need to be taken off the road. Sooner or later, it has to happen. Make it sooner. Today In U.S. History

Today is Thursday, June 4, the 155th day of 1970. There are 210 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1942, the Pacific war battle of Midway began. The naval warfare ended in Japan's first decisive defeat in the war.

On this date:

In 1805, the United States concluded a peace treaty with Tripoli.

In 1831, Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg was chosen as the first king of Belgium.

In 1896, Henry Ford made a successful run with his first car -a nighttime drive around streets of Detroit.

In 1936, the first socialist government of France took office under Premier Leon Blum.

In 1943, army troops marched into Buenos Aires, Argentina, and overthrew the government of President Ramon S. Castillo.

In 1946, Juan Peron was inaugurated president of Argenta.

Ten years ago: The United States sent a formal note to Cuba accusing the Havana government of conductiong an official campaign of slander against the United States.

Five years ago: Communist China's premier Chou En-lai made an official visit to Tanzania.

One year ago: Seventy-nine persons were killed in the crash of a Mexican airliner on a mountain in northeastern Mexico.

KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY

Howard Kershner Edward Rowe

In his annual report to Congress on the state of the economy, President Nixon called for an end to inflation and the erosion of the dollar, a balanced budget, stability of prices, the preservation of the free market economy and equal opportunity for all.

The nation will approve of these objectives.

Certain statements in the address, however, seem to us very puzzling. For instance:

"Our purpose has been to slow down the rapid expansion of demand firmly and persistently . . ."

Wouldn't it be better to put the emphasis on supplying the goods and services to meet the demand? Surely, there is nothing wrong about people wanting more things. What is needed is to maintain balance between the various groups of producers so that what one offers will readily exchange in the marketplace for what others are offering. Provided balanced relationships are maintained,—there is no limit to what people can have except their willingness to work hard enough to produce the goods and services they desire.

Let's not limit demand—let's meet it—and all of us enjoy higher living standards!

The President states, as if it were something desirable, that in 1970 we may expect ". . . continuation of a low rate of growth of sales, production and employment . . ."

We do not believe this is necessary. Freedom in the marketplace, without government intervention on behalf of any group, would maintain the balance that would keep the markets clear and permit a steady growth in production, employment and total output of goods and services. If this principle were recognized and followed, we could all work all the time, dispose of our goods and services readily, and have as much of the good things of life as our efforts would provide.

Enemy Close to Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces captured a town 10 miles southeast of Phnom Penh today and battled for control of a provincial capital in central Cambodia, the Cambodian military command reported.

The attack on Set Bo, to the southeast, was the closest major fighting yet to the Cambodian capital. A spokesman said the attack came during the night and the last government resistance was knocked out at 7 a.m. But he said the Cambodian army was launching a counteroffensive.

Eighty miles north of Phnom Penh, fighting was reported still going on in the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, a town of about 25,000 on the highway to Angkor Wat.

The spokesman said enemy forces had been massing for several days around Kompong Thom, which was cut off from Phnom Penh last week by the capture of a district capital just south of it and destruction of a major highway bridge.

Kompong Thom's defenders requested air bombardment of the enemy positions Wednesday, the spokesman said, but "due to the hour it was not possible." He said he had no reports of air activity in the area today, but that a sizeable force of government regulars was on hand to defend the town.

In the past, the militia was the only defense of some major points and buckled before the Communist command's battlehardened troops last week. South Vietnamese troops saved Prey Veng, another provincial capital southeast of Phnom Penh, but the nearest South Vietnamese forces to Kompong Thom were 65 miles away.

The attacks at Set Bo and Kompong Thom appeared to be a continuation of a Communist tactic of pressure over a wide area to score propaganda gains and confuse the Cambodian high command.

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam flew to Phnom Penh today with a delegation of cabinet ministers, and the Cambodian government lessened restrictions on Vietnamese Cabinet ministers, and the Cambodian government lessened restrictions on Vietnamese refugees who had been herded into camps in Phnom Penh during the early days of the fighting. The refugees were given the run of the city from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m.

As Ky and Cambodian Premier Lon Nol were approaching the honor guard at the airport, a Cambodian air force C47 made a belly landing on another runway, scattering pieces of its undercarriage about. There was considerable smoke, and fire trucks raced out, but the plane did not catch fire. Nor was the ceremony interrupted.

"He was too busy watching the ceremony, to watch his landing," Ky's pilot said of the unfortunate Cambodian flier.

Ky headed the first high-level Saigon delegation to visit Cambodia since the two neighbors broke relations in 1963. Informed sources said they would implement agreements signed last week during the visit to Saigon of Cambodian Foreign Minister Yem Sambaur, during which diplomatic relations were restored.

The decision of the Cambodian government to welcome troops from South Vietnam and Thailand, Cambodia's traditional enemies, brought a charge from the deposed chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, that the Thais and South Vietnamese were trying to "steal portions of our beloved fatherland which they have always coveted."

"The despicable traitor Lon Nol even plans to sell our country to those other despicable lackeys of U.S. aggression—Taiwan and South Korea—in order to protect himself and his henchmen," said Sihanouk in an appeal to the Cambodian people broadcast by Radio Hanoi.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command reported American battle deaths in Indochina rose slightly last week, with 110 killed in Vietnam and 55 in Cambodia, a total of 165 or 23 more than the week before. Another 521 Americans were wounded in Vietnam and 236 in Cambodia, a total of 757.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 576 dead, 158 less than the week before, and 1,480 wounded. The total of enemy deaths also was down sharply, from a revised 4,289 in the week of May 17-23 to 2,534 last week, the allied commands said. But the latter figure undoubtedly will be increased next week.

The allied commands now have reported totals of 42,430 Americans, 108,155 South Vietnamese troops and 646,671 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed in the war. A total of 278,571 Americans have been reported wounded.

The nightly Viet Cong and North Vietnamese rocket and mortar attacks across South Vietnam increased sharply in the hours before President Nixon's broadcast report on the war, the allied commands reported today. However, U.S. officers said the increase may have been due more to the dark of the moon than to any attempt to score a propaganda point in connection with Nixon's speech.

"In every month this kind of activity seems to increase when the moon is down, at it was last night," said one U.S. officer.

More than 40 rocket and mortar attacks were reported during the night and a total of 71 from 8 a.m. Wednesday to 8 a.m. Thursday.

Four Sentenced In Circuit Court

NEW MADRID — Four were sentenced in circuit court Thursday after entering guilty pleas.

Judge William L. Ragland granted probation without supervision to William Alfred "Pete" Mannon, 42, after sentencing Mannon to five years in the state department of corrections on a manslaughter charge.

Mannon had been charged with first degree murder in connection with the shooting death of his wife, Ina Mannon, Jan. 6. The state amended the charge to manslaughter.

George Savat was given a two-year sentence and granted probation with supervision after he pleaded guilty to exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon. He was accused of exhibiting a 410 shotgun at C. B. Correthers, Howardsville, Jan. 16.

Dewey Honey charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of a guitar belonging to Ricky Jay Drennon, Risco, Jan. 31, was granted probation with supervision after receiving a two year sentence.

Glenn Crews originally charged with exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon against Helen Jaynes, Parma, on Sept. 6, 1969, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of disturbing the peace. He was given a suspended 60-day county jail sentence upon payment of costs and $25 fine.

Charges dismissed by the state include Carl Joe Evans and Nathan Delota Randall, each charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

St. Francis Levee Tax Reduced

CARUTHERSVILLE— St. Francis Levee district, directors adopted a 25 per cent to 15 cents per acre reduction in the tax rate.

The reduction was made possible because of the good financial condition of the district. There is no construction work scheduled this year.

The rate of 20 cents per acre was established in 1966, after a 50 per cent increase was made for construction of a berm, to strengthen banks in the Gayoso Bend and Island 16 areas.

Members of the board are S. Crews Reynolds, Caruthersville, president; T. A. Haggard, Steele, vice president; Wayne DeLisle, Portageville; Glenn Petersen, Wardell; A. P. Kersey Jr., Caruthersville, and George T. Glozier, Caruthersville, Chief engineer, and Catherine T. Kaiser, secretary.

Bill to Raise Debt Ceiling Heads for Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — After surviving war critics' attacks in the House, a bill to raise the national debt ceiling by $18 billion heads for the Senate amid indications its quick passage might hinge on the Cambodian war policy debate.

The House passed the measure Wednesday by a 236-127 vote. It permits raising the national debt limit from $377 billion to $395 billion.

Some senators mentioned the possibility that action on the bill might be delayed if debate continues on another measure to curtail military spending in Cambodia.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures prices were irregular in early dealings today.

On the opening, wheat was ½ cent a bushel lower to ¼ higher, July 1.35½; corn was ¼ lower to 1/8 higher, July 1.30; oats were unchanged to ¼ higher, July 65 5/8 cents rye was unchanged, July bid 1.05 3/8 and soybeans were 3/8 lower to ¼ higher, July 2.72.

Contractors, Strikers Agree

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Contractors and striking hoisting engineers reached tentative agreement early today on a contract settlement and it is hoped will end a 64-day strike. The strike has paralyzed the construction industry in St. Louis.

The strike by about 150 employes of sand and gravel producers shut off the flow of ready-mixed concrete and in turn idled much of an estimated $500 million worth of construction.

The strike by Hoisting Engineers Local 513 caused the layoff of about 18,000 members of other unions at a cost of nearly $2.3 million a day in wages. The strike began April 4.

Two Held in Theft Released

CHARLESTON — Magistrate Court Judge T. J. Brown, Jr. ordered the release of Richard Leroy Clark and Billy Joe Garrett, Jr. from custody and placed them on probation for one year. Clark and Garrett had been convicted of stealing less than $50 and given six month jail sentences.

Seven speeding violators appeared before Judge Brown; Edward Lisle House fined $40; James Nolen Jolliff fined $33; Donald Wilson MacAllister fined $24; Katherine Virginia Owens fined $21; Milam Alton McNeal fined $26; Albert Dee Reed fined $21; and Rodger Lynn Brooks fined $25.

Amon Benson Ashcraft nd Norman Hale Caldwell were each fined $21 on charges of careless and imprudent driving.

A charge of non- support brought against Claude Marbry was dismissed by the state at $9.50 costs to the defendant.

Judge Brown assessed a $32.70 fine to Lester Cain, et al for disturbing the peace, and a $22 fine to Helen Wethington on a similar charge.

Murphy Lee Young paid a $26 fine for exceeding weight for which his truck was licensed.

A Promissory note suit brought by Brown Smith d/b/a Brown Smith Used Cars, against Keith Lee and Henry Lee was dismissed by the plaintiff without prejudice. Smith also dismissed another promissory note suit against Arnold Williams.

Judgment was found for the plaintiff, Southeast Missouri Hospital to recover from Nicholas Reichert and Sherry Reichert $362.84 principal, $12 interest, plus $9.50 costs in an account suit.

Car-Bike Crash Averted

PERRYVILLE — A car-bicycle collision was avoided Wednesday at 3:15 p.m. on highway, four miles south of Perryville, the state highway patrol said.

Evelyn E. Moran, 50, driver of a 1970 Ford, came over a hill, and saw a bicycle ridden by Kevin Lee Balsman, 13, Perryville.

Applying her brakes she skidded off the higway and ran into a fence.

Mrs. Moran was taken to Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville, where she was treated for a knee injury.

Rock Group Records

CARUTHERSVILLE — The Collection, a rock group from the bootheel, has gained a following throughout the Mid-South.

Their new single record on Rolando Records of Memphis, features as the A- side, a song written by Jamie Holmes, a drummer of the group, titled: "Flying High Wednesday," backed with a new arrangement of a Knight Brothers' recording from the 1950's titled: "Temptation's 'Bout To Get Me."

The Collection was originally known as the Nite Raiders. They got their start as the Nite Raiders in 1966 in Caruthersville, home of four members of the group.

In 1967 they were winners of the Missouri Jaycee Battle of the Bands contest and competed in the finals of the National Jaycee Battle of the Bands contest in Boston, Mass.

Their picture was featured in Life magazine along with an article concerning the Battle of the Bands. They were also featured in Hullaballo magazine the same year.

Although the oldest member of the group is only 23, the youngest 17, they have a tremendous background, having worked singularly and collectively with everal known groups and individual stars. They have also made numerous television and concert appearances.

The members are- John Hornyak, piano, organ, rhythm guitar; Wendell Stanfill, bass, backing vocals; Jerry Stanfill, lead guitar; Jamie Holmes, drums, flute, sax; Mark Carroll, lead vocals, harmonica; Don Smith, lead vocals, percussion.

Israeli Pilots Score

TEL AVIV (AP) — "Even if they had our planes and we had their MIGs, the outcome would be the same," said the Israeli pilot as his air force announced Wednesday it had shot down the 101st Egyptian warplane since the 1967 June war.

"It is not so much the equipment involved that matters," said the flier. "It is the pilots. It appears the Egyptians don't have the skill, aggressiveness and certainly not the motivation of our pilots."

Israel claimed three MIG21s were brought down in a flurry of aerial combat Wednesday over the Suez Canal area.

The Israelis also claim 23 Syrian aircraft downed since the war. In this same period, Israel says it lost 20 plans, including 11 to the Egyptians.

The Israelis attribute 76 of their 101 kills to aerial combat and the rest to antiaircraft guns and missiles. By contrast, they say Egyptian pilots have downed only four Israeli planes in dogfights.

Military experts consider the Israeli air force highly trained, efficient and well led. After it wiped out most of the Arab air fleets in the 1967 war, its commander, Maj. Gen. Mordechai Hod, boasted that he had "the best pilots in the world."

But despite their success, the Israelis are probably the most faceless fliers in the glamorous history of aerial warfare.

Military communiques speak only of strikes and kills by Israeli air force planes. They never mention the type of plane, the units or the names of pilots.

An air force source, asked who was the leading ace, would say only that he has 11 kills to his credit.

Israel has complained that the Arabs mistreated some of the few Israeli pilots who have been captured. The source said names and individual accomplishm q)e not publicized so as not to invite retaliation if any of them are captured.

It is known that many of the pilots are kibbutzniks, raised in the frontier agricultural settlements in semimilitary surroundings under the sights of Arab gunners.

Asked about Egyptian air defenses, the pilot replied: "Ineffective. The fact we fly freely over their territory is the best evidence. The Egyptians can seldom enter Israeli territory without being intercepted and shot down."

"There is the feeling that the Egyptians want to avoid a fight," he said. "They generally break off contact first in an air fight."

Israeli pilots have not yet tested the SAM3s, the advanced Soviet antiaircraft missiles which reportedly are guarding Egypt's interior. Nor have there been any clashes reported with Russian pilots said to be flying defense missions over inner Egypt.

Informed sources say the pilot receives a certificate and a bottle of French champagne for each Arab plane he downs.

"Since they are nondrinkers, the bottles are put on display as trophies," one informant said.

Israeli planes continued their intensive bombing of Egyptian military targets along the Suez Canal with a 24-hour sunrise attack today, the military command announced. All planes returned safely, it said.

In the last four days, Israeli jets have hammered Egyptian canal positions for a total of 48 hours, the most prolonged bombing since the 1967 war.

Israeli planes hit Egyptian positions for 15 hours Wednesday. An Egyptian spokesman said two Israeli Mirages were shot down, but the Israelis denied this. The Egyptians admitted the loss of only one of the three planes claimed by the Israelis.

Travelers arriving in Lebanon from Cairo reported that the Egyptian capital is in the grips of a cholera scare after reports of an outbreak of the disease in two suburbs. An Egyptian spokesman dismissed the reports as rumors, but travelers said 16 persons had died in the industrial suburb of Khanka, cases were found in the fashionable suburb of Heliopolis, and hundreds are lining up for inoculation.

Hogs Given Roadside Burial

BENTON — A boy discarded four dead hogs along a highway near Chaffee earlier this week.

Sheriff's officers found out the youth's identity and as a consequence he was made to bury the animals where they had been thrown.

No arrest was made.

The hogs had been killed by lightning.

This Mediterranean island has often been the scene of bloody battling between its Greek inhabitants, many of whom favor union with Greece, and its Turkish minority, which favors dividing the island in two. But trouble lately has been confined to the Greeks. The Terrorist National Front has renewed its demand for "enosis" or union with Greece. But the government of President Makarios is dedicated to independence. So far, the Turks are not involved in the latest round of trouble. AP Newsfeatures

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Once again, the cry of "enosis" is ringing on the craggy Mediterranean island of Cyprus. Enosis means union of the island to Greece; for Cypriot President Makarios it means trouble.

Cyprus is an island about 140 miles by 60 miles located in the eastern part of the Mediterranean. It is 40 miles south of Turkey and 60 miles west of Syria.

The population of some 600,000 is about 80 per cent Greek and 20 per cent Turkish.

Because of its position in relation to the Middle East, Cyprus represented an important stepping stone in medieval religious crusades and trading.

The island's modern history reaches back to the late 16th centruy when the Ottoman Turks expelled the Venetians, who had gained power through a long series of military ventures and political manevers. The Turks ruled the island for more than 300 years, until 1878, when Great Britain took over and occupied it by agreement with the Turks.

Although Cyprus remained under Turkish sovereignty, the British controlled its administration in exchange for assuring British help in the event the Russians attacked Turkey's eastern provinces.

From the start of British admisistration the Greek population of the island, left from the days of Greek influence during the fifth centruy, began to demand enosis. For many years, the request was of little more than academic interest.

But in 1914, war broke out between Britain and Turkey, and the British annexed Cyprus. A year later, they offered the island to the Greeks, if the Greeks would help Serbia, which was being invaded at the time by Bulgaria. Greece refused to help Serbia, and the offer lapsed.

Between the two world wars, agitation for enosis among the island's Greek population increased, and in 1931 the British abolished the island's legislature and vested power in the governor alone.

After World War II, Orthodox Archbishop Makarios emerged as the leader of the movement for independenc. The campaign for union with Greece became more violent, and British, Greek and Turkish foreign ministers could not reach a solution to the problem of widespread terrorism.

The terrorist campaign against British installations and military personnel was kept up by a former Greek army officer, Col. Georgios Grivas. In 1955, emergency regulations were introduced, British reinforcements were sent to the island, and negotiations were begun with Markarios.

Although the British were willing to grant a measure of self-government, Makarios demanded independence. The negotiations broke down and Makarios was deported to the Seychelles. For the next year, terrorism continued unabated, and finally cooled off for a time when the British agreed to allow Makarios to go anywhere besides Cyprus.

The Turkish population was growing increasingly restive over the growing possibility of enosis, and the Turks proposed that Cyprus be partitioned.

The agruments for partition on the one hand and enosis on the other were settled after Makarios proposed self-government for a time, which was to be followed by independence.

The Greek demands for enosis continued, however, and Grivas returned to the island, this time as a general in the Greek army, to announce that he favored enosis. At first, he said he was expressing a private opinion, but he later was put in charge he later was put in charge of Greek Cypriot security forces on the island.

Under an agreement between Turkey and Greece in 1959 (Britain later accepted the terms of the agreement) military presence of all three counties was maintained on the island, despite its new independence.

In the mid '60s, Turkey and Greece came close to war over the island.

Last March, an attempt was made to assassinate President Makarios. Those charged with the assassination attempt were said to be members of the National Front, an organization supporting enosis which has claimed responsibility for many terrorist incidents.

Recently, about 70 men broke into a police station in the southern part of the island and stole a large supply of arms and ammunition. Makarios, angered at the raid, dismissed a number of police officers for dereliction of duty.

The president has said the March assassination attempt was not an isolated incident, and recent activities of the National Front suggest he may be right.

The recent skirmishing so far has pitted Greek Cypriots against Greek Cypriots. What will happen if Turkish Cypriots should get involved in the violence is anybody's guess. But no one expects enosis to get close to reality without the Turks raising their voices in protest.

Power Need May Bring Rate Hike

The Board of Public Works yesterday reviewed an engineering firm's report on Sikeston's electrical power supply needs for 10 years. Director Dick Inman said no action was taken.

Sikeston's use of power has been increasing 11 to 15 per cent each year Inman said, and the present supply can meet the city's needs for only one or two years, then additional electrical power will be needed.

The engineering firms study recommended either Sikeston light and water purchase the needed power or expand their own generating facilities. Inman said the city could purchase additional power, but he doubts if it can be obtained at "rates workable with our system." A rate increase probably will be put into effect.

Inman said the city probably will be able to purchase power from the Southwest Power Administration to meet needs at peak use times.

Hearing in Death Case Tuesday

NEW MADRID — James Herman Meese, 30, was arraigned this morning in magistrate court on a first degree murder charge. He requested a preliminary hearing.

Judge Leo Hedgepeth set Tuesday for the hearing. Meese is being held in the county jail unable to post $10,000 bond.

Meese was taken into custody in St. Louis Tuesday following the fatal shooting of Houston Ray Moore, 37, of Campbell at the home of Meese's former wife in Gideon at 4 a.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Michael Posts Bond on Assault Charge

BENTON — Mrs. Judy Michael of Sikeston posted $500 bond Thursday in connection with last month's shooting of her husband, Aubrey Michael, in the left leg with a .38 caliber pistol.

A warrant was issued earlier in the week charging her with felonious assault. Mrs. Michael posted bond in Scott County Sheriff John Dennis' office.

News Briefs

Reservoir Ruptures in Florida

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A ruptured reservoir and flood waters from six days of rain drove more than 500 persons to emergency shelters and closed major highways in Florida's Panhandle Wednesday night.

No injuries were reported.

At Pensacola, police evacuated 400 persons as up to seven feet of water slammed into their homes after the wall of a city reservoir burst in two places. Electricity was knocked out in some sections, including one hospital.

The Weather Bureau forecast scattered showers again today for the Pensacola area, already soaked by more than 13 inches of rain since Friday—seven inches of it Wednesday.

43 Nobel Winners Writes Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Fortythree Nobel laureates in science have joined in a letter to President Nixon urging him to "rise to the heroism that these times demand and take swift and decisive steps" to end U.S. involvement in the war in Indochina.

"We agree with the stand of many that the health of this nation depends on a swift disengagement from war in Southeast Asia although the violent tactics used by some to express this are repugnant to us," the scientists said.

Announcement of the letter, whose signers represent nearly three-quarters of the Nobel science prize-winning recipients in the United States, was made Wednesday simultaneously in New York, San Francisco and Chicago.

41 Plan for Another Count of Residents

Forty one met at the city administration building Thursday night to make plans for a recount of Sikeston residents.

Clem Beal, who is heading a citizens for growth committee of the Chamber of Commerce, announced tentative plans that call for 13 zones to be outlined within the city limits. Each zone will have a captain from civic organizations. A meeting of captains will be held to firm up plans and rules for the recount.

Sikeston's population, according to preliminary census figures, increased by only 700 persons during the past decade. The count now stands at 14,488.

Beal explained the city and Chamber of Commerce has had enough calls from persons not counted in the census that "it is imperative we count it again." Beal said primarily the recount is needed for industrial prospects and the state gasoline tax revenue which is paid on per capita basis.

Thirty families ranging from two to eight persons have reported exclusion from the census.

City Manager W. Raymert Miller explained census bureau officials in St. Paul, Minn., have indicated that persons excluded from the official census count woud be added. Miller said it is doubtful another official government census would be made.

Several persons, who worked on the census were at last night's meeting. A few indicated displeasure with the feeling the official census count is being discredited.

Beal said no one is questioning the census takers and the jobs they did.

The question was raised about whether the recount would include only persons living in the city on April 1. The official census count was based on April 1 residents. The recount will include servicemen and college students who were not necessarily living in Sikeston on that date, but these will not be included in the federal census count.

"It will mean a lot of work," Beal said, "but it is important."

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE Manager O. D. Clayton distributes forms that will be used to recount Sikeston residents.

Wilson Named to Represent Wilburn

BENTON--Attorney John Wilson was appointed Wednesday in magistrate court to represent Sam "Buddy Jives" Wilburn, 69, of Sikeston, accused of shooting Albert Brown, 55, also of Sikeston, last week.

Brown died of gunshot wounds Wednesday morning in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Magistrate M. E. Montgomery appointed Wilson after it was learned Wilburn does not have funds to hire an attorney. Wilson will be assistant prosecuting attorney of Scott County as of July 1.

James E. Moore III, who now serves as assistant prosecutor, said Wilburn probably will be charged with criminal homicide. He was charged with felonious assault prior to Brown's death. Wilburn was released from custody by Judge Montgomery to return on his own recognizance.

In other court action Wednesday Marilyn Hopper, Vanduser, was given a suspended 60-day jail term and fined $100 for driving without an operator's license.

Persons fined for speeding included J.E. Noble, Chaffee, $40; Ellen Nunnally, Cape Girardeau, $28, and Aubrey Michael Jr., route one, Benton, $25.

Fined for careless driving were G.W. Enderle, Illmo, $10; Curtis Finney, Bell City, $5, and A.W. Zimmer, Cape Girardeau, $5.

James Brown, Delta, was fined $10 for peace disturbance.

Edward Richter, New Wells, was fined $15 for failure to have a public carrier service permit.

Willie Vines, Vanduser, was fined $100 for driving while intoxicated.

B.G. Marshall, Scott City, was fined $10 for failure to have a driver's license.

Explosive Resolutions Reaches Missouri House

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A couple of potentially explosive resolutions reached the Missouri House Wednesday before the members quit for the weekend.

It was not known when they might be taken up during the final week of the special session that starts Monday. In the hectic windup they could be overlooked altogether.

One, by three Republican members from St. Louis County, commended the University of Missouri Board of Curators for its demand that faculty and students involved in an anti-war demonstration last month be punished.

The resolution said the curators "acted in a most responsible manner to halt and curtail future campus disruptions."

House, Senate Works

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — House and Senate conferees started work today on the first of the main appropriation bills passed by the Senate Wednesday.

Police Eye Speeders, Dogs And Children

Police are beginning a crackdown on speeding motorists, stray dogs and children playing in the street.

Police Chief Arthur Bruce said the department is getting an increasing number of complaints about stray dogs and he warned dog owners to keep their animal on their own property. If not, he said, dog owners are going to be arrested.

Officers operated radar on Murray Lane and Helen Street Wednesday and made eight citations and issued warnings.

In the next few weeks radar will be used at various points in the city.

"We're going to have to slow the motorists down," Chief Bruce said.

The chief appealed to parents to caution their children not to play in he streets.

"This is going to have to stop or we are going to have some children seriously hurt," Bruce said.

Nixon's Postal Reform to Debut in House Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's postal reform legislation makes its debut on the House floor next week, a year--and the nation's first postal strike—after it was sent to Congress.

The bill calls for a massive overhaul of the Post Office into a semi-autonomous agency able to set its own rates, wages and investment plans.

Action on the measure, which carries an 8 per cent pay hike for postal workers, is expected to head off renewed talk of a second walkout because of Congressional inaction.

The Senate is expected to consider a similar reorganization bill later this summer. Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, speaking informally to newsmen Wednesday, expressed hope the legislation could be approved by fall.

Passage of the postal reform package would conclude a drive begun three years ago when then Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien proposed a postal corporation, declaring the 200-year-old Post Office "is in a race with disaster."

That conclusion was echoed a year later by a presidential commission. The Nixon administration introduced its reform legislation May, 1969.

Neither the House nor the Senate bill conforms exactly with the legislation submitted by the administration last year. But Blount said differences are of a technical, rather than substantive nature.

"When we first submitted the legislation, we said there were four basic things we wanted in a postal reform bill: control of our investment policy, control of our costs, proper control of our income or rates and continuity of management.

"Our feet weren't set in concrete as far as form as long as these four principles were preserved. These are principles that we will not compromise on."

Even though Congress appears likely to pass the reform legislation, the administration has received one setback: proposals for higher postage rates seem doomed this year.

In the interview, Blount did not consider passage of the rate increases a condition for acceptance of the reform and pay hike package.

Under either Senate or House bills, the new postal service would be divorced completely from the President's cabinet and be run by a board appointed by the President.

The board, in turn, would hire a manager to run the service on a day-to-day basis.

Rates would be set by a rate commission, also appointed by the President. Proposed new rates need approval of the board and, in the House version, could be vetoed by a majority vote in either chamber within 90 days.

Salaries for postal workers now set by Congress, would be subject to negotiations between management and the posts unions. Other than the right to strike, the postal workers would have all labor rights accorded workers in private industry.

Both bills allow the management of the new post service to issue up to $10 billion in general obligation bonds to finance new buildings and equipment. Currently, money for such purposes is doled out by Congress.

PUNCTURED DREAM

The House will vote shortly on a new legislative package aimed at helping the nation's depressed housing industry.

One day not too long ago, Richard A. Lis went to a real estate office in a Chicago suburb and listed his place of business for sale. It was a real estate office. "It got to be too much for me," he said. Worsening inflation, tigher money and higher interest rates are turning the American dream of everyone owning his own home into a nightmare.

"Virtually all moderate- income families have been priced out of the housing market," says Rep. Wright Patman (D. Texas), chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee. A recent staff study by his committee showed that 28.4 million households could not afford the payments on a $20,000 house loan -- the typical financing on houses sold under government mortgages.

Housing starts have been declining since last summer, reports the National Association of Home Builders. Nathan H. Rogg, its vice president, states that during the first four months of the year, construction fell 21.6 per cent from the 496,100 units begun during the same period in 1969. New starts totaled 1.4 million last year and government economists have predicted that even with an upturn, production will be no higher this year.

Single family homes have suffered the most during the current crunch. The NAHB estimated that 730,000 single family homes will be built this year, almost 50,000 fewer than in 1966, when the last crisis occurred in the housing market. Many builders are losing interest in single family homes and want to concentrate on apartments and developments. Michael Sumichrast, the group's chief economist, explains: "Builders, due to the shortage of funds, are now putting up larger and more costly units, since it is easier to get financing on this type of unit."

Less costly new homes can still be found in metropolitan areas, but many are far from the city. Mainly, they are homes insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. Even these have gone up sharply in price. The only low cost housing available in many areas is mobile homes. An estimated 400,000 were sold this year. Housing costs are being pushed upward by the "four L's"-- land, labor, loans and lumber and other building materials.

To stimulate the housing market, the Senate has approved an administration - sponsored plan authorizing the Federal Home Loan Bank to subsidize loans to the nation's savings and loan associations, the largest single source of credit for home construction. The bill permits states to charge lower interest rates than required by federal law for urban renewal or public housing projects.

Plans are also under discussion to insulate mortgage financing from the effects of restrictive monetary practices aimed at restraining inflation. One idea calls for flexible interest rates on housing that go up and down along with other interest costs. Supporters say it would attract more money into the mortgage market. "Impatience for quicker resolution of existing housing deficiencies is predictable," says the Morgan Guaranty Survey of the prospects for approval of such proposals.

But even if you can find your dream house and have the money to pay for it, your troubles are not over. Maintenance costs, utilities and taxes are still on their way up.

HOW TO TALK GOOD

The English have no respect for their language and will not teach their children to speak it... It is impossible for an Englishman to open his mouth without making some other Englishman despise him.

--George Bernard Shaw, Pygmalion

Professor 'enry 'iggins would be pleased to know that Wednesday, May 20, was Eliza Doolittle Day, the purpose of which is "to honor Miss Doolittle for demonstrating the importance of speaking one's language properly." Eliza, of course, is the heroine of Shaw's Pygmalion and of the musical My Fair Lady -- the Cockney waif who becomes a great lady through speech therapy.

On the other hand, Higgins--and Shaw, his creator--probably would disapprove of current developments in linguistics. Where Shaw believed in a single standard of acceptable speech and a simplified alphabet, today's linguistics scholar revels in the diversity of speech patterns. For example, the school of thought known as structural linguistics tends to reject the idea that there is any "right" or "correct" grammar; its permissive principles influenced the word selection of Webster's Third New International Dictionary.

A second school of thought called transofmrational linguistics, of which Noam Chomsky of M.I.T. is the leading exponent, contends that language is an innate, instinctively acquired facility. The study of language, Chomsky and his followers says, should start with sentences and then try to discern the rules by which a sentence conveys its meaning.

If Higgins were plying his trade today, he no doubt would be a sociolinguist-- one who studies socially determined speech patterns. He would use a tape recorder to capture Eliza's gutteral consonants and tortured vowels and relate them to her Covent Garden background. But he would not bother to teach her Oxbridge English. Poor Eliza would keep on saying "The rine in Spine falls minely in the pline."

Driving studies are generally conducted to determine the causes of accidents. Most of the facts and figures coming out of these studies are grim.

But if you pick through a large number of the research reports, you can generally find "by- product" information that is unusual; and sometimes funny.

Here are some examples, taken from tests conducted by the Highway Research Board, the National Safety Council, various insurance companies and other organizations.

-Ministers, presumably lost in deep thought, tend to drive faster, collect more traffic citations and have more "fender- bender" accidents than the average person.

-Drivers on long trips tend to drive faster than motorists on short excursions over the same roads.

-Drivers with high annual mileage rates tend to drive faster than occasional motorists.

-If you own your own car, you're likely to drive slower than someone you lend it to. This reportedly is especially true of younger drivers.

--Divorcees, male or female, tend to drive faster than married persons.

-Buses travel faster than most passenger cars, while trucks travel much slower. And the more trucks in the traffic flow, the slower the overall speed of the traffic.

--New cars are generally driven faster than old ones.

--High- priced, heavier autos are generally driven faster than cheaper, lightweight cars, including the sport models.

-Automobiles hitting public utility poles cause more than 60,000 blackouts in this country each year.

--Fatal accidents involving animals or animal- drawn vehicles seem to be on the increase-- at the rate of about ten per cent a year.

"Advertising's chief role is that of selling consumer. There are other ways to do the job. But we believe that advertising is the most effective and efficient."

"Advertising can and does broaden existing markets and create new ories more rapidly, more intensively and less expensively than any other method..."

"Properly used, advertising brings about savings o the consumer that may exceed substantially the cost of advertising..."

"Advertising cannot build an enduring business for a poor product; It cannot sell a product in a competitive market unless there is continual product improvements..."

"Advertisng forces competition. Advertising will not work effectively if thyproduct is not fully competitive in price..."

"Advertising and scientific research work hand in glove. When a company is confident of its ability to inform the public quickly, it is more willing to invest dollars in the research needed to bring about improvements..."

These principles could e applied to any business, from the small etail shop to the largest industry.

Hal Boyle

HAL BOYLE (NEW YORK (AP) — One of the common complaints of people who live in big cities is that they have trouble getting good fresh summer vegetables.

Those available at the store are often force-ripened, tired tasting, or limp from too much refrigeration. Lacking is the tangy backyard taste of homegrown vegetables.

There is a way, however, you can live in the city and get all the fresh vegetables you want at no cost whatsoever. All you have to do is play on the vanity of suburban gardeners.

Let us say that you have three office friends who commute daily to work and have backyard gardens at their homes. They are named Tom, Dick and Harry.

Here's what you do:

Early in the season you go up to Tom and say:

"I'm sorry to hear about your tough luck."

"What tough luck?" he asks.

"About your radish crop. Dick and Harry told me the flugelbugs got them all."

"What the devil do Dick and Harry know about gardening?" demands Tom. "I never had better radishes in my life."

The next day he brings you in a double armload of radishes to prove his point.

After you have eaten them, you go to Dick and with a long face seek to sympathize with him about the disaster that happened to his green onions.

"I hear the pango worms got what the rabbits didn't," you say. "Tom and Harry told me about it."

The next morning Dick overwhelms you with a 16-pound bag of green onions and an hourlong denunciation of Tom and Harry for being chronic liars.

When you weary of green onions, you simply go to Harry and tell him its a real shame what Dick and Tom just told you—that a horde of Tibetan beetles wrecked his green beans because he forgot to spray.

This supposed criticism by his rivals makes Harry so frantic that overnight he strips his garden of green beans and shows up at your desk with a pushcart full of them.

So it goes. You keep playing Tom, Dick and Harry against each other, and all sommer long your table is inundated with a quality of cauliflower, lettuce, cucumbers, squashes, watermelons and corn on the cob that money can't buy in the city.

You'd think they'd get wise to your little game, but they never do—because you've got them so piqued they aren't speaking to each other. If one of them actually does have a bad crop, say of beefsteak tomatoes, he'll scour the farms in outlying areas to buy some better ones, and palm them off on you as his own. He'll do anything rather than let you think his green thumb has turned rusty.

Of course, if you're the greedy type and there are 10 suburban gardeners in your office, you can play them all off against each other. That way you can get enough free vegetables for your wife to set up an orange crate stand in your front yard and sell them to passers-by.

But that would be carrying a good thing too far.

BASIC CAUSES— "Our government today is following the same path toward national insolvency that over the past years was followed by Great Britain, a policy which last year resulted in the devaluation of the pound," said Sen. John J. Williams (R.-Del.). "The basic cause of the undermining of confidence in the American dollar is not the shortage of gold but concern over the fiscally - irresponsible policies of living beyond our income without at the same time demonstrating that we have the courage either to reduce expenditures or to raise taxes. Congress must attack the basic cause of inflation and the threat to the American dollar, and that can only be done by a realistic reduction in expenditures and a sound tax policy."

BE POSITIVE
FOR FREEDOM

With freedom so obviously threatened we cannot afford to waste time in gloomy discussion. Freedomists must act!

Commend your clergyman when he preaches against atheism, communism sin and crime. Let him know you suppot his efforts.

When businessmen advertise in patriotic publications or with a patriotic program on the air, phone or visit and tell them of your pleasure and admiration for what they are doing.

There is at least one patriot on the staff of every newspaper, magazine, radio and TV station. Seek them out and offer commendation and encouragement for their efforts on freedom's side.

Although you may not convert the atheist and dictator-minded, you may have opportunity to speak a fit word to his fellow travelers. If you can reach them you can often convert them by stating the case for freedom and leaving them to think it over.

Explore this nation's glorious history with the young people of your acquaintance. Acquaint them with the immortals of this Republic's illustrious past. A lad who is taught to admire Paul Revere, George Washington, Nathan Hale, Patrick Henry and Davy Crockett will not grow up to be an admirer of Karl Marx, Mao-Tse Tung, Ho Chi Minh or Che Guevara.

There is far more good news for the freedom side now than there has been for four decades, and freedomists must heed the words of the old Johnny Mercer song of World War II, to "Accentuate the positive, eliminate the negative, latch on to the affirmative and don't mess with Mr. In- between." HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The ouster of Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk has stirred up plots in Laos to dump Prince Souvanna Phouma and set up a Cambodian- style military government. This could repeat the Cambodian crisis all over again in Laos, with dangerous consequences for the U.S.

Intelligence reports warn that rightist Laotian leaders have been encouraged by the Cambodian experience to attempt a similar takeover in their country. They are weary of the aging Souvanna Phouma who, like Sihanouk, has put on a show of outward neutrality. But just as Sihanouk permitted secret incursions by the North Vietnamese, Souvanna Phouma allowed the Americans to operate in Laos.

The Kremlin had promised both leaders that the North Vietnamese would leave their countries after the Vietnam war was settled. But as the encroachments increased, the two princes lost faith in the Soviet promise and concluded that the North Vietnamese would never clear out voluntarily.

Souvanna Phouma turned increasingly to the U.S. to save Laos from the communist crunch. But Sihanouk flew to Moscow and Peking to enlist support in getting the North Vietnamese out of Cambodia. While he was on this mission, he was deposed by the generals he left behind. Now he has joined the same forces, ironically, that he had tried to remove.

SECRET UNDERSTANDING

Washington and Moscow reached a secret understanding, meanwhile, to keep still about the U.S. intervention in Laos. As long as the U.S. didn't officially acknowledge its clandestine operations, the Kremlin agreed to ignore them.

The Russians, as they had promised Sihanouk and Souvanna Phouma, also guaranteed there would be no North Vietnamese takeover of Laos and Cambodia. Both the Soviets and Americans agreed to endeavor, at least, to confine the war to South Vietnam.

At no time did the U.S. wish to expand the Vietnam into a fullscale Indochina war. Restricting the battlefield to South Vietnam, however, also had advantages for the communists. It meant that the U.S. could never really win the war. For it is impossible to defeat an enemy who can escape across the border into sanctuaries.

In 1964, the North Vietnamese began enlarging their sanctuary privileges in Laos by attacking the Plain of Jars and increasing the infiltration down the Ho Chi Minh spiderweb of trails.

The U.S. countered by stepping up its clandestine activities and bombing the infiltration routes. After the bombing of North Vietnam was halted in 1968, the U.S. simply moved the sorties across the border and concentrated the full fury upon Red targets in Laos.

CIA'S SECRET ARMY

The Central Intelligence Agency, meanwhile, has subsidized a secret army in Laos under Gen. Vang Pao, a vulgar ex- French Army sergeant, whose 14,000 fighting men have been recruited largely from the minority Meo tribes.

The secret army is headquarterd at the multi-million- dollar CIA base of Long Cheng. A steady stream of Air America and Continental Air Services planes, under CIA and AID contracts, haul food, munitions and the monthly payroll for Vang Pao's troops.

Stories have now leaked out about this clandestine army, describing it accurately as the only effective fighting force in Laos on the American side. Yet my reporter in Indochina, Les Whitten, reports from Vientiane:

"The sad fact is that all the millions expended upon Vang Pao's mercenaries have not convinced one responsible U.S. official in Saigon or Vientiane that this land of 2.8 million people can be defended for more than a few weeks by the secret army against a determined communist attack.

"The communist Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese control half of Laos and clearly could take over the other half almost at will."

Whitten adds that "the fabled CIA forces, which liberal Senators regard as some kind of powerful presence in Laos, are made up, in fact, of time servers, a few brilliant intelligence men and a larger number of ex-servicemen who are as harassed as any Washington bureaucrats simply trying to carry out routine duties.

CIA ROUTINE

"Much of their time is spent going to Lao units like traveling salesmen taking orders for ammunition and guns. At other times, they are paymasters, making sure than Vang Pao's officers don't pocket the pay that is supposed to go the soldiers.

"The CIA agents also wearily stress to the Laotians on the U.S. payroll: 'No boom boom, no rice.' If they refuse to fight, in other words, they will get no food or pay.

"While the secret army is at least classifiable as a military force, some of the other Laotian army units are hardly more than poorly trained and homesick militia. Their pay is as low as $6 per month, compared to about $25 for Vang Pao's riflemen.

"The Lao generals, meanwhile, are up to their brass buttons in scandals. Some front for such enterprises as bowling alleys and nightclubs, often owned by Chinese. The name of a general protects the owner from confiscation or excessive taxation by corrupt officials.

"One general reportedly has been selling the Lao national forest to the Thais for American - financed construction projects. A U.S. effort to license and certify the health of Laos's prostitutes was thwarted by another general who didn't want to call attention to his source of income."

Whitten declares that Souvanna Phouma, whom the right- wing generals would like to depose, remains in Laos only by communist sufferance. The communists, reports Whitten, "may fear intervention from Thailand with its pudgy but large army and population 11 times that of Laos, or from U.S. ground forces in the Cambodian pattern.

"Or they may, as some cynics suggest, prefer to wait while the U.S. builds fine roads, structures and air fields that soon will be left behind."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

INSIDE WHITE HOUSE:

U.S. Labor Chiefs Rally to Israel; Urge Nixon to Counter Soviets Immediately

WASHINGTON, D.C.:-It has been little noticed that with the President and the hard hats in the Oval and Cabinet rooms the other Tuesday (May 26) was a bantam Irishman, "Teddy" Gleason, who long ago gave up his waterfront hook for a tough political jab.

When the moment came for Mr. Gleason, national chief of the longshoremen, to have his minutes with President Nixon, "Teddy" in that dockside Hell's Kitchen bluntness said:

"Mr. President, it's all woven together for us. We can't show the white feather either in Vietnam or in Israel. If we run they'll run after us."

Ted Gleason has as much use for euphemism as he has for raspberry soda. He laid it on the line. He did not use the cover argot of "the Middle East." He said Israel, his people, the hard hats and the labor movement want the U.S. to sell jet fighters to the besieged Jewish state.

Anything else would be cowardice, "the white feather," said "Teddy." The hard hats, listening intently, nodded a grim approval.

Mr. Nixon listened. He gestured with his hands. To "Teddy" Gleason and to the No. 1 Hard Hat, Peter Brennan, the gesture appeared to indicate approval of their intense words--that rejection of Israel's request for the right to buy, cash on the barrelhead, the fighter craft it needs to balance off the Soviet-Egyptian-Syrian-Jordanian military coalition, would be fatal cowardice.

However, only the President knows what he meant. And only the President will make the final decision. But there is no doubt that he will be pressured by most of American labor. Whoever else may abandon tiny Israel, the massive American labor movement won't. AFL-CIO President George Meany has made this as plain as a Sphinx silhouette in a desert twilight. He has spoken publicly and privately to the President. He was as blunt with the State Dept. as is the front end of his chewed cigar.

In fact, in the U.S. he is Israel's most powerful ally. He is not an election time friend. As a result he has been journalisticaliy brutalized by the Soviet press as an ally of the industrial-military complex. The Russians have reason to hate him. In his anti-communism Mr. Meany has been about as movable as one of the pyramids.

He has fought them on every front. Over the years he has prevented the State Dept. from yielding to Moscow's bids for exchange of labor delegations. When the Reuthers invited the director for international affairs of the All-Union Central Council of Soviet Trade Unions, Boris A. Averianov, to attend a United Auto Workers conference, the AFL-CIO fought the issuance of a visa. Why?

Because Mr. Meany does not believe that Soviet labor organizations are legitimate trade unions.

And because Mr. Meany and his collegues know that Tovarich Averianov has been directing a brutal and distasteful attack on Israel, aiding the Arab propagandists and assailing friends of Israel inside the world labor movements.

And because the Soviet "unions" national chairman, Aleksandr Shelepin, is a former secret police chief. Shelepin went to Cairo two years ago and unleashed a crude attack on Israel, sort of a keynote speech for all Communist-controlled and pro-Soviet labor movements across the world. It was the signal.

Mr. Meany, himself an ex-hard hat, never has missed the chance to speed to Israel's aid. On May 13 the AFL-CIO Executive Council--a day after listening to Mr. Nixon's briefing on Cambodia--passed a razor-edged resolution calling for the sale of military aircraft to the little state of 2.8 million now holding its own against 80 million Arabs--and 10,000 Soviet missilemen, ground troops and pilots.

"We strongly urge the administration to act favorably and promptly on Israel's economic and military needs and thus preserve the balance of power-- not merely for the sake of Israel but in the interest of preserving world peace and freedom."

There was much more to this resolution. It was all rushed to the White House in an hour.

Mr. Meany's own intelligence sources know that the Soviets now actually run Egypt. President Gamal Abdel Nasser himself told this to David Rockefeller, head of the Chase Manhattan Bank which has done so much for Israel's financial and bond structure.

This was passed on to President Nixon. The labor people know of the Nasser-Rockefeller conversation--and Nasser's request that this be reported to Mr. Nixon.

It was. So Egypt is another Cuba. Difference is that Israel is not Guantanamo Bay.

The Soviets are there. The American labor leaders well know the meaning of Soviet infiltration. These labor leaders know well the Soviets' respect for power. So the George Meanys, the Teddy Gleasons, and the hard hats want aerial power put in the hands of Israeli pilots, just in case.

Young Man With Homosexual Experience In Past Wonders Should He Tell Fiancee

Dear Ann Landers: When I was 13 (11 years ago) my uncle started a homosexual relationship with me. It lasted until I was nearly 15. One day we were discovered by my father. The next night my uncle killed himself. This caused such an upheaval in our family that I was placed in a foster home.

My foster parents were the finest people God ever put on this earth. Out of their own modest funds they paid for my psychotherapy and put me through college.

I recently became engaged to a wonderful girl. We plan to marry in August. My real parents demand that I tell the girl and her family the whole sordid story of my past. I do not feel it is necessary for them to know. I'm not the same person I was eleven years ago and I see no purpose that could be served by digging up old bones. My fiancee is very naive and her parents are ultra- conservative. They would be shocked to death. My foster parents have begged my folks to stay out of it but they are adamant. What should be done? --- Eric

Dear Eric: Your foster parents may be "the finest people God ever put on this earth" but they are not very realistic. Your fiancee and her folks should be told and you are the one who should tell them -- with your foster parents at your side.

If there had been only the homosexual incident, I would say "keep quiet." But the suicide makes the story spectacular - one which is sure to be remembered by people who know you and your family. Someone would surely pass the word to your girl and her parents. Then where would you be?

If they cannot accept you after they learn of your background it is best that you know it now.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is one of the greatest guys in the world--but he is becoming an insufferable bore. Reason: We are building a new home and that's all Freddie talks about. He has memorized the dimensions of all the rooms, knows the technical names for mortar mix, wood treatment and termite protection. He draws diagrams and gives lectures of the windows, the air conditioning and the lighting. In brief, he monopolizes every conversation and our friends are sick of it. Last night he hauled the blueprints out of his pocket and spread them on the dinner table. We had six guests and I thought I'd die.

I hate to deflate his ego because this house means a great deal to him. But he's becoming a pain in the ankle. What should I do?---Fed Up

Dear Fed: I can think of few things in this world less interesting than other people's blueprints--unless perhaps it is slides of their trip or movies of their child's birthday party. There are times when a wife must be brutally frank to save a husband from himself. Tell Freddie he is imposing on people and to cut it out. Warn him that if he starts talking about the house again you'll promptly change the subject as an act of mercy. Then do it.

Dear Ann Landers: Big Problem: Last month we entertained several couples in our home. (Most all were executives of the firm.) A few days ago the phone bill came--a staggering $82. I had the calls checked. It seems one of our inebriated guests called a couple of his former secretaries--- one in Honolulu. What should we do? --Mrs.???!!!

Dear???!!!: Send him the bill with a note saying, "You forgot to put this on your credit card."

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet "Marriage--What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Special Church Activities

The Anderson College Drama Quartet will be presenting a program of religious drama at the Tanner Street Church of God in Sikeston at 10:30 a.m., Sunday according to Rev. Vernon Guttenfelder, pastor. The public is invited to attend the admission- free program.

The drama will be one of a repertoire of three dramas, especially written for the sanctuary, which the Quartet will be presenting during its twelve- tweek tour of thirteen states of this country and on six islands of the West Indies.

Members of the group are Kenneth Croch from Anderson, Ind., Alethea Blocker from Bessamer, Alabama; Karen Horner from Hugoton, Kansas; and Errol Beecher from Kingston, Jamaica.

The Drama Quartet is a part of Student Summer Service (TRI-S), a program of Anderson (Ind.) College, which sends 150 volunteers around the world each summer in "Peace- Corps-type" assignments.

In its sixth year, TRI-S has placed some 700 students, largely at their own expense, on six continents in service-educational experiences.

Announcing Clinics For Cheerleaders

Susan Shobe

WIBC Field Rep To Speak In Charleston

Field representatives of the Woman's International Bowling Congress travel thousands of miles annually throughout the United States, offering guidance and counsel to the nearly three million members of the Congress for sanctioned women bowlers.

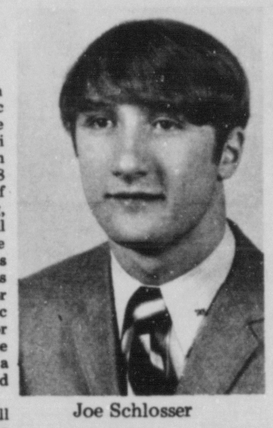

One of the field representatives, Miss Susan Shobe, will visit Charleston on June 16 as a guest of the Charleston Woman's Bowling Association for its 7:30 p.m. forum at the First Security Bank, Main Street.

During her appearance, Miss Shobe will answer questions concerning rules, procedures and policies of WIBC. Miss Shobe will also assist the association in finding answers to locally oriented problems if there seems to be an area of uncertainty.

No official association business will be transacted at the forum. Time permitting, Miss Shobe will offer a slide presentation, discuss the many services of WIBC to its members, the three divisional format of the WIBC Championship Tournament, share information about the American Junior Bowling Congress, the collegiate and senior division programs, promotion plans of the National Bowling Council of which WIBC is a member, WIBC's films and any new plans and projects of WIBC.

The meeting is open to all members of the Charleston Woman's Bowling Associatioand local area Junior Bowling Association officers.

Mrs. Hazel Given Award

A special award was presented May 26 to Shirley Hazel, wife of Wesley Hazel, who operated the Hazels Gulf Station in Morley.

The award, a plaque bearing two rare silver dollars, two Kennedy half- dollars, and a specially minted commemorative coin set in an automotive engine design, was presented for exceptional customer service by a representative of The Gates Rubber Company.

The Denver- based rubber company sponsors a nation-wide contest (now in its 38th year) to reward service station personnel who provide exceptional customer service. A fleet of "Gates Mystery Cars" regularly travels across the country stopping at service stations. Each "Mystery Car" has a worn fan belt. Award plaques are presented to station personnel who notice the defective belt and offer to replace it.

Card Battery Provide Power

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Catcher Ted Simmons thought his fondest dream had turned into a nightmare before the St. Louis Cardinals climbed past the San Francisco Giants 6-5 Wednesday night.

Simmons, only last week called up from Tulsa of the American Association, helped the Giants score three runs with a passed ball in the opening inning.

But the switch-hitting 20year-old checked signals with veteran pitcher Bob Gibson and thereafter caught a strong game to help the Cardinals sweep a two-game series.

"For a while there I was wishing I was back in Southfield, Mich., my hometown," Simmons said after the Cardinals rallied from a 5-1 deficit.

"Bob and I weren't together on our signals at the outset, so we called in Joe Torre from third base to do a little interpreting and got things straightened out.

"There is no difference in the signals, really, except that Bob uses an extra signal from what the other pitchers use.

"This game was something special for me. Ever since Monday night I'd been dreaming about catching Bob Gibson. I can tell it's something else."

In the third inning, the Giants wrapped up their scoring on Ken Henderson's single behind an error, a walk and a fielder's choice.

The Cards pecked away at Giant's right-hander Rich Robertson for runs in the bottom of the third and the fourth, however, and were down 5-3 when Richie Allen led off the seventh.

Allen singled off reliever Frank Reberger, Joe Hague drew a one-out walk and Simmons singled, filling the bases.

Pinch hitter Vic Davalillo then delivered a two-run single to tie the game before Leron Lee struck out. Gibson himself then stroked the game-winning hit, a single beyond the reach of Giant first baseman Willie McCovey.

The hits were the third apiece for Simmons and Gibson, who combined to drive in three runs.

"I can't think of any tougher way to win than that," gasped Gibson.

Free Agent Draft Begins

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's endless search for new talent focuses today on the annual summer draft of high school and college graduates and 21-year-old unsigned players. The draft will run for two days and over 1,000 young men probably will be picked.

The free agent draft represents baseball's attempt to control the flow of schoolboys with major league potential without going through the wild bonus scramble of earlier years.

Although an occasional schoolboy or college star is able to command $100,000 or more to sign his first pro contract, the vast majority settle for considerably less. Figures show about half of those drafted will sign. The unsigned go back in the pool for future drafts but not by the same team.

Normally the process of moving from high school or college team to the majors involved several years in the minors. In contrast, pro football usuaily can make immediate use of the college product who thus can demand higher bonus payments.

Four pitchers from the June 1969 draft, when 1,147 players were selected, are currently on big league rosters. They are Don Gullett of Cincinnati, Rich Hand of Cleveland, Bert Blyleven of Minnesota and Balor Moore of Montreal.

They have been drafting free agents only since 1965. Two sessions are held each year, one in June and the other in January for the semester graduates. This is not to be confused with the annual minor league draft when the clubs select other professionals.

San Diego picks first, followed by Cleveland, Montreal, Milwaukee and so on down to the New York Mets, No. 23, and the Baltimore Orioles, No. 24. They draft in reverse order of their 1969 finish, alternating by leagues. As - San Diego and Montreal each had a 52-110 record, the commissioner's office flipped a coin and San Diego won the No. 1 pick.

There are two divisions of the draft - the regular phase covering players picked for the first time and the secondary phase, covering players who were drafted previously but did not sign. The order in the secondary phase is determined by lot with San Francisco winning the No. 1 position this June.

Owners Testify

NEW YORK (AP) — If you had the money to invest in a major league sport would you buy a basebal team or a pro football club?

If you answered baseball you are probably being emotional. Purchasing a pro football club involves less financial risk.

That, at least, might be the lesson learned from testimony Wednesday in the Curt Flood case as baseball paraded three club owners to the stand as defense witnesses to support the sport's contention that the reserve system is necessary to its operation.

Two of the owners, Francis Dale of the Cincinnati Reds, and Bob Reynolds of the California Angels, also have been involved in pro football ownership and cited the major difference between the sports as being in the area of player development.

"Investment in pro football team involves less risk," said Dale, who also has an interest in pro football's Cincinnati Bengals, after he had completed testifying.

"The nature of the investment is different - it goes for different things. Pro football doesn't have a farm system to support and there is no lag of three to four years before a player who is signed can make contributions at the major league level."

Dale, Reynolds and John McHale, of the Montreal Expos, all estimated that their clubs would spend approximately $1 million on player development and acquisition this season and needed the safeguard of the reserve sysm to assure a return to their investment.

Dale said on the stand he didn't think baseball could operate successfully with pro football's contract clause in which a player can play out his option and become a free agent.

City Leagues Beat Rain

City League Baseball opened its 1970 season last night. The previous two- day - long rainfall slackened long enough for three of the Leagues to play. The Sr. Babe Ruth, Musial and National Leagues all completed their two opening games, while the American division opens tonight, and the Jr. Babe Ruth next week.

In the opening contest in the Sr. Babe Ruth Division, Hart's Standard collected 13 runs off of 6 hits and defeated Leible Implement 13-1. Gary Vaught picked up the win for Hart's Standard, as he allowed only one run off of five hits. Richard Howard led the squad at the plate, as the slugger knocked in two runs off of two hits in three attempts at the plate.

David Hampton carried the bat for Leible, as the centerfielder collected two hits, one a double,and scored the teams only run. Hensley, Hei, and Moore collected the teams other hits, each scattered singles. Danny Hei took the loss for Liebie as numerous errors faultered his bid for the win.

In the night- cap, the Elks collected seven runs in the last inning to move past Lindsey's M&H 8-6. The Elks collected only four hits in the encounter, but managed to scoot seven runners across the plate off of relief hurler, David Newberry. Danny Watkins collected one of the Elks three hits, a double, and crossed the plate twice. Buddy Vaughn and Benny Britt collected the other two hits.

For the M & H-ers, Randy Reynolds led the batting attack with two hits as the catcher collected half of the squads four hits. Craig and Breedlove each had the remaining singles.

Ed McDowell picked up the win for the Elks, while Newberry suffered the loss, after relieving starter Bob Blankenship.

In the National League opener at Puckett Field last night, Kiwanis blanked the Lions 11-0, and captured the leagues first victory. In the second encounter, A & B Oil picked up a 17-4 win over Legion.

In the first game, Kiwanis picked up eight hits, and behind the pitching of Shaffar, held the Lions scoreless. Deal and Nunnelee carried the bats for the Kiwanis club, as they both collected two hits. One of Deals hits was the League's first Home Run.

Lee suffered the loss for the Lions, as his squad was held to only two hits. Wheeler and white combined for the Lions only two hits.

In the nightcap, A & B picked up their 17-4, four-inning win over Legion. Legion jumped ahead early in the game as they picked up four runs in the first, but were held scoreless the rest of the game. Ron Friday picked up the win for the Oilers, while White added the nights second Home Run, and went three for four at the plate. Davidson collected a double and single to add to the offence of the Oilers.

Legion could only collect four hits, one off of Griffin, Lenderman Seller, and Lawrence. Bean took the loss for the Legion, and was later relieved by Lawrence.

STEERING COLUMN

By Bill Brodrick

MAGGIE VALLEY, N. C. — This place is so far back in the hills that the sun sets between here and the nearest town.

Maggie Valley isn't a valley at all. It's the top of a mountain. And, friend, I mean a mountain. The road up to Ghost Town would put the off-road race down the Baja Peninsula out of business. Ghost Town itself is unreal. Its few hundred residents live in the days of Jesse James and the Dalton boys.

The whole reason for being here is to say howdy to an old friend. His name is Pal Parker. Now that won't set off any bells ringing inside the minds of most people butclosseto 40-million pair of eyes looked at a racing picture of some kind that was taken last year by none other than Pal Parker.

He's been seen more at race tracks across the country than the checker flag. He looks like a cross between Al Hirt and Gargantua and carries more equipment strapped to his body than a Borax mule team.

Race fans remember Pal Parker for years and forget who won the race. He's worked his camera in more pits at a race track than any chief mechanic in the sport. He's been in vicotry lane more than any driver. His racing pictures have been everywhere a picture can be printed. Trouble is, most people never know when they're looking at a Parker photograph because pictures don't carry a by-line.

Pal started out by selling programs at the old beach and road course in Datona Beach, Florida during the February Speed Weeks when he was a kid. He's been a race car owner, official, promoter, complainer, thief, and friend. If it has to dowith racing, Parker has taken a picture of it.

"The life of anyone connected with professional sports, and especially automobile racing, appears to be a pretty glamorous one," said Parker. "But last year I was gone 115 nights. I drive to all of the races mainly because there is so much equipment that a photographer has to take along. I put close to 50,000 miles on my VW bus.

"Auto racing has changed so quickly over the past several years that it's hard to keep up with it," continued Pal. "You really notice it when you spend all of your time recording the sport on film. I can go pull pictures out of my file that were taken just several years ago and place them along side of today's shots and you can't believe what you see.

"Racing is attracting more fans every day and a good number of them are getting involved for the very first time.They don't know what it was like in the old days. That's one reason I'm glad we've got pictures to remind us of what it used to be. Today, auto racing is big money. It's wearing a white shirt and tie instead of a tee shirt."

Pal Parker lives in the mountains of North Carolina. By instinct, he finds his way out every week to attend a major event in the sport of speed. His full beard and handlebar mustache are as much a part of racing as a helmet and ggles. He's auto racing's historian. He's the sports link with the past and recorder of the future. Pal's one of the many people who live for the sport and make it what it is.

Grant to Aid Two Workshops

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The department of business administration and business education at Southeast Missouri State College has received a $4,000 grant to conduct two workshops this summer, the head of the department, Dr. Gene Loftis, has announced.

Dr. Loftis said the grant from business and office education section of the Missouri State Department of Education provides funds for workshops entitled "Analysis of Business Occupations."

One workshop will be conducted on the Southeast Missouri State campus June 8-June 19. The other will be held at O'Fallon Technical High School in St. Louis June 22-July 3. Participants may earn two hours of graduate credit.

Director of both workshops will be Dr. Louise Reddick, associate professor of business administration and business education at Southeat Missouri State.

Dr. Loftis said, "The focus of the workshops will be on obtaining first-hand information concerning occupational requirements, training, and availability of employment for office employees. Office visits, on-the-job analyses, and interviews with businessmen will highlight each workshop."

He continued, "One of the major purposes of the workshops will be to give teachers of business education courses a good 'on-the-job' look at the actual responsibilities and experiences that the college or high school graduate encounters when he or she walks into the business firm."

Each workshop will include a field trip to selected businesses in the St. Louis area, Dr. Loftis said.

Dr. Reddick has had broad experience in both business and education. She has a bachelor's degree from Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, a master's degree from the University of Texas in Austin, and a dectorate from North Texas State University in Denton.

Reason for Acceptance

SOS, the internationally accepted call for help from a ship in distress, was chosen because it was convenient to send on the early wireless transmitters.

Symptons of Recession Found in Seattle, county

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — It's beer instead of cocktails at night clubs, businessmen go out to lunch more often but stay home at night and apartment "for rent" signs are as thick as evergreen trees.

These are the symptoms of recession in Seattle and surrounding King County, home for about 1.1 million persons, where the Boeing Co. is king.

Airplanes are to Seattle what gambling is to Las Vegas. When Boeing business is down, everybody feels the pinch.

The restaurant and night club business is typical.

"People are tipping less and instead of drinking cocktails, they're ordering beer," complains a downtown bartender.

"And instead of two or three, they'll have one and out the door they go."

Luncheon business has jumped in the city's restaurants, according to Stephanie Slater of the State Restaruant Association. At the same time, she said, there's been a decline in evening trade.

"Businessmen evidently are still going out to lunch with clients and business associates, maybe on expense accounts, but not spending money at home to take the wife and kids out," she said.

The Boeing Co., which delivered 56 jets in the first quarter of 1970 compared with 96 during the same period last year, has laid off about 20,000 workers since Jan. 1. During all of last year Boeing laid off 14,400. The firm's payroll now stands at 60,700.

There are about 2½ times more people out of work here now then at this time in 1969. The State Department of Employment Security put the April unemployment figure at 50,700 for the Greater Seattle area.

The empoyment drop has apartment owners and operators in a tizzy.

It's a renters' market. Inducements to attract tenants include free use of color television and stereos, a month's free rent for lease-signers and some lowering of rents.

A recent survey in the Seattle-King County area showed one out of every six apartments vacant. The figure was estimated to be 25,000, a 15-month high.

Boeing executives are pinning their hopes for an upswing on a bill now pending in Congress which would provide $290 million for construction of a supersonic transport prototype.

Boeing's net earnings for the first three months of 1970 were $6.8 million, down from the $14.02 million the first quarter of 1969.

Lung Collapses At Meeting

DEXTER— Bill Evans, employee of Dexter Cut Rate Drugs, is a patient in he Southeast Missouri Hospital, Cape Girardeau. Evans was hospitalized last Thursday after his lung collapsed while he ws was attending a Methodist Men's Breakfast at the Hickory House.

The tube was removed from his chest Saturday and the lung collapsed again Saturday night. A breathing machine is being used to strengthen his lung, it was learned Monday, and it is expected he will be hospitalized most of this week.

House Subcommittee Opens Hearings Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House agriculture subcommittee opens hearings next week on a proposal to ban the importation of foods treated with pesticides restricted in the United States.

Agriculture Committee chairman W.R. Poage, D-Tex., sponsor of the bill, said today the prohibition is designed to protect consumers from possible health dangers and eliminate unfair economic competition from abroad.

"It would be illogical and unacceptable to provide consumers with only partial protection from whatever dangers may be inherent in using certain pesticides," said Poage.

"If it is determined that a chemical is detrimental to a person's health, then he should not be exposed to it on foods grown in either this country or abroad."

In addition, Poage said, it would be unfair to restrict domestic farmers' use of some pesticides while allowing competitive items in from overseas without the same limits.

He noted competition from abroad is already severe because laborers in other lands are paid less than U.S. workers.

He said his bill would prohibit imports of foods from any country unless the President has determined the nation involved enforces antipesticide restrictions at least equal to those applicable in the United States.

The hearings qill begin Monday before a subcommittee chaired by Rep. Eligio de la Garza, D-Tex.

$268,211 Spent for Welfare

NEW MADRID — County recipients of assistance from various funds disbursed by the New Madrid County Welfare Office for May were paid $268,210.62. The greatest went to those on the old age assistance list.

John M. Underwood, Sr., director, reported there were 1554 on the old age assistance rolls and they received a total of $114,591.00. The average checks was $73.74.

A total of 691 New Madrid county families with 1934 children received $79,233 in the Aid to Dependent Children category and received an average of $114.66 per family check.

Two hundred and forty six persons received permanent and total disability assistance totalling $17,092.00 and the average check per month was $69.48.

New Madrid county had 78 persons on the Aid for the Blind list and each received $90.00 per month for a total of $7,020.00.

From general relief funds 260 families of 284 persons received a total of $17,875.00 or an average check of $62.94 per person.

A total of $31,933.37 was expended under the vendor programs for all categories of assistance. There were the hospital, and nursing home vendor programs.

There were 71 children under child welfare supervision.

Services were given to 71 children and service was completed to 12 children, leaving a caseload of 59 at the end of the month. Of these children now being given services, 42 are in the homes of their parents or residing with relatives, 10 are in foster boarding homes, 3 are in adoptive homes, 4 are in non-relative homes.

Amount spent for room and board, clothing, medicine, dental care, and incidentals for the children under Child Welfare Supervision from the New Madrid County Court for the month was $240.97. Amount expended from State Boarding Funds was $225.28.

Three Liquor Licenses Revoked In Caruthersville

CARUTHERSVILLE— Liquor licenses of three Caruthersville business licensees were revoked, effective Monday by the Missouri Department of Liquor Control.

The establishments- Casanova Lounge, licensed to Ed C. Chilton and Modene Gatewood; Eddie and Jay's, licensed to Modene Gatewood and Ed C. Chilton; and The Sportster, licensed to John A. Johnson, Jr., were notified yesterday of the revocation of the licenses by liquor control supervisor Harry Wiggins.

On March 6, supervisor Wiggins conducted hearings for the three businesses on various liquor charges, and took the cases under advisement, until yesterday, when his decision was made public.

The Casanova licensees were charged with unlawful selling for resale; Eddie and Jay's for unlawful refill of containers and unlawful selling for resale; and the Sportster, for unlawful purchase from other than a licensed wholesaler; unlawful selling; failure to post license and unlawful selling for resale.

In accordance with Missouri statutes, the revoked licensees have 15 days to file an appeal with the supervisor of liquor control on the revocations.

Another liquor charge against the Climax Buffet, also licensed to Mrs. Gatewood, is still pending, and another hearing date has been set for June 12 in Cape Girardeau for an unlawful selling after hours.

The revocations were among the last items of business for Wiggins, who served his last day as supervisor yesterday Effective today, William D. Wright, Jr. is acting supervisor of the liquor control department.

Cosmonauts Near End of 3rd Day

MOSCOW (AP) - Cosmonauts Andrian Nikolayev and Vitaly Sevastyanov neared the end of a third seemingly routine day in orbit today, strengthening the general view that their space flight is a workhorse operation to perfect maneuvers that have not gone well before.

Tass said the spaceship Soyuz 9 completed its 38th orbit of the earth this morning, the two crewmen fulfilled the program of their third day in flight, and the cosmonauts "carried out medical control and passed to the orbital compartment for rest."

Having been launched Monday night, Moscow time, the cosmonauts sleep for eight hours of the Russian day.

Pravda published an interview today with the designer of Soyuz 9, who said it was making an experimental flight ... to perfect the systems that will be used in future spaceships and orbital stations and to test new systems. Another task is to determine the optimum correlation between the abilities of man and the possibilities of automatic equipment."

Cape Offering Music Workshop

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A non-credit, short-term workshop entitled "Music Experiences for Early Childhood" will be held June 29-July 1 at Southeast Missouri State College.

Dr. Willard J. Morgan, director of school services at the college, said the workshop "is designed to assist teachers of young children, ages 4-6, to improve basic music skills, to enlarge knowledge of appropriate music activities, including songs, rhythms, and games, and to learn new sources of books and recorded materials for use in their classes."

Dr. Morgan said the workshop will be geared to the non-specialist in music and added that no previous music training will be required to participate.

The workshop will be directed by Dr. John Shelton, associate professor of music at Southeast Missouri State. The sessions will be conducted in the air-conditioned Music Buildin. Sessions during the three-day period will run daily from 9:30-:30 a.m. and 2-4 p.m.

One of the sessions will feature a demonstration of music acitivities with kindergarten children.

WHY IS THE TOTEM POLE SIGNIFICANT?

Many Indians feel they are descendants of some mythical animal. They carve totem poles with images of such animals as a badge of identification with their clan.

POLLY'S POINTERS

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering both Mrs. H. G. and Mrs. J. W. regarding ironing patches on clothes. I use them liberally and apply them to the wrong side of the material when it becomes thin. instead of waiting for a real hole to appear. I use them on both knees and elbows and especially on my husband's slacks. A patch in time has saved many a shirt and pair of slacks and there is no worry about matching colors when they are applied on the wrong side.

Like another reader, I have a mouton coat. Mine is 20 years old and really looks almost new, even though the lining is now due for a replacement. I have it stored each summer and cleaned professionally when necessary. If badly soiled, this may be done every year but usually every two or three years is sufficient.—MARY MARGARET

DEAR POLLY—Our school in Oakland is trying to find new ideas for fund raising. We are now selling handcrafted items and would like suggestions for something to do with nonreturnable bottles that might help us sell them and help with the ecology problem, too.—LISA

DEAR POLLY—I find the Pointers helpful and have clipped and saved quite a few but have never received or heard of anyone who did receive a dollar for one. I hope the following will do it: When saving washing instructions for a garment or item, I cut a tiny swatch from the inner facing or from a seam edge and glue this to the instruction tag. This eliminates guessing which washing tip goes with which dress, sweater or whatever—MRS. W. S.

MRS. W. G.—You now know of someone who has received a Polly Dollar.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have just decorated an attic room that will be used as a child's room. I could not afford to carpet it, so used eight carpet tiles left over from the playroom to make a slide-proof bedside throw rug. The adhesive is on the back of each of these tiles so they stick to the floor. For extra fun, I am gluing wool fringe around the edges. —CHARLOTTE

Washington Report

SYMINGTON URGES MORE EFFORTS FOR RURAL DEVELOPMENT

WASHINGTON, D.C. Many problems in America today such as crime and pollution can be traced in part to the conditions created by an unbalanced distribution of population across our land. During the last century, we have observed the growth of concentrations of people in our great cities, while the population in the countryside has steadily declined.

One need only examine census data for our state which shows that, with the exception of Adair, Audrain, Boone, Buchanan,Clay, Marion, and St. Charles counties, every county north of the Missouri River has lost population in the years between 1890 and 1960. In this respect, with fewer and fewer people in the rurai counties, and more and more people in our urban centers, the cost of providing adequate public services is becoming, and in some cases has already become, prohibitive.

When we recognize that we must accomodate 100 million additional Americans expected by the year 2000, efforts to restore a reasonable population balance in our nation are vitally necessary. One important key to restoring the rural-urban balance must be increased rural development. In March the President's Task Force on Rural Development published its first report. Among its recommendations are:

--Exploring the feasibility of using investment tax credits for attracting new industry to non-metropolitan areas.

--Creation of a rural development bank.

--Increasing the pace of water resourced development.

--Conducting a long range study of the need for balanced population growth.

This is the fourth task force report on rural development to be delivered to the White House since 1966. All of these reports have stressed the need for action. However, it is regrettable that so few of the recommendations suggested in these reports have been adequately implemented.

COMBAT FOREST FIRES. In a statement I made recently to a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee I spoke in support of increased efforts to combat forest fires in Missouri and across the nation.

Although progress has been made in the prevention and control of forest fires in Missouri in the last twenty years, wildfire still destroys a lot of Missouri timber. At the present, fire kills an average of 6 million cubic feet of growing stock including 20 million board feet of sawtimber each year in the state -- roughly five percent of the saw timber cut annually. These figures do not begin to measure the effects in terms of retarded growth, reduced quality, and the widespread decay of timber due to the invasion of fire-caused heart-rotting fungi.

Missourians are deeply interested in protecting and developing our forest and are concerned that the Administrations Budget request for U. S. Forest Service Cooperative State an Private Forest Fire Control is only $14,396,000. This is $2,000,000 less than was appropriated in fiscal year 1970. In addition, although the law authorizes up to 50 percent Federal funding of cooperative fire prevention operations in each state, in the Missouri forest fire program the Federal share of the total cost has decreased from 21 percent in 1964-65 to 17 percent in 1968-69. In light of escalating labor, equipment, and reforestation costs, full funding of this law would mean increased Federal participation, and therefore, more effective forest fire control.

Harlow Speaks At Conference

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — "You cannot painlessly de-fever an economy," Bryce Harlow, cabinet rank counselor to President Nixon, said Tuesday.

He spoke of Nixon's efforts to curb inflation, the stock market decline and the nation's economy at the concluding session of a three-day Missouri Retailers Association conference.

Harlow said the Republican party traditionally "takes over to put out wars and fix up the economy and said Nixon was doing just that. He called recent stock market trends mere gyrations.

He said campus unrest was caused, in his opinion, by physical size of modern colleges and universities — so big individuality is lost. He said Nixon was solving student complaints through draft reforms, ending the war in Vietnam and supporting the 18-year-old vote.

Harlow was slated to leave today for a tour of Vietnam and Cambodia. He called it a fact finding tour.

46 Graduate from Bloomfield High

BLOOMFIELD — Forty-six members of the 1970 graduating class of Bloomfield high school received diplomas of graduation at the annual commencement exercises in the schoo auditorium.

Diplomas were awarded by High School Principal Dewair Ward following the valedictory address given by James B. Holifield. The concert choir presented musical selections. "Let There Be Peace on Earth" and "Halls of Ivy." The choir was under the direction of George Bates, high school music director.

Debbie Denton presented a vocal solo, "The Impossible Dream;" she was accompanied by Jim Holifield. The gospel quartet, Terry Bowling, Lloyd Holland, Richard Kyle, and Bob Wilcox, presented two selections. The Rev. Sterling Aubuchon and the Rev. Jimmy Trotter gave the invocation and the benediction.

Supt. R. E. Sharp awarded scholarships and special awards to members of the graduating class. These scholarships were made possible through the efforts of the civic organizations, private business, and the colleges.

Recipients of these scholarships were:

Holifield, valedictorian, received the regents scholarship from the Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau. He will attend college there where he plans a major in music.

Patti Bennett, salutatorian, received a general scholarship from Southeast Missouri State, where she plans to follow a major in business education.

The Bank of Bloomfield presented its $200 scholarship to Linda Myrick, who will enroll in the Manpower Business Training Institute, St. Louis, to take training in data processing.

The Bloomfield Parent-Teachers Association presented its $100 scholarship to Richard Kyle.

Steve Tippen was awarded the Bloomfield High School Alumni Association scholarship of $100. He will attend Central Methodist College, Fayette, and will major in social studies.

Terry Bowling was the recipient of the AMVETS Auxiliary scholarship of $100.

The Junior Federated Club chose Jeanne Harper to receive its $100 scholarship. She plans to attend Southeast Missouri State, where she will major in women's physical education.

The Community Scholarship, made up of the American Legion Auxiliary, the Senior Federated Club, the Soroptimist Club, and the Scholarship Council, presented its $100 scholarship to Marvin Lafferty. Marvin plans to attend the Manpower Business Training Institute, St. Louis, to train as a computer programmer.

Scientists Required to Have Political Clearance For Advisory Committees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has confirmed it requires what amounts to political clearance for scientists appointed to important government advisory committees.

Frederic V. Malek, deputy undersecretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, confirmed in part reports from career government officials and scientists that the administration has injected an unusual degree of partisanship into selections for policy advisory committees.

"It is important to the secretary and the management of the department to have certain appointees to these committees reflect his philosophies and represent his interests," Malek said.

The committees - covering areas from air pollution to alcoholism, heart disease and cancer - help shape the policy direction of critical scientific programs.

Appointments to strictly technical, nonpolicy advisory committees are apparently not subject to the political checks.

Career program managers complain of "low batting averages" in placing scientists they deem qualified on their advisory committees.

Recently, antipollution officials had all five of their nominees for the Air Quality Advisory Board rejected by the Nixon administration, sources said. Five different men were appointed, three of them employes of industry.

Some scientists, in turn, report they have been denied advisory posts by the Republican admisistration because they are Democrats.

Malek was asked recently by Rep. John S. Monagan, D-Conn., chairman of the House government operations subcommittee, whether scientist-nominees to the committees are screened to determine their sympathies "to what you are trying to do or accomplish in your administration."

"That is correct," Malek replied.

Knowledgeable HEW officials say such political screening was unusual in past administrations.

"There was a certain cronism of scientists on the committee trying to get their friends aboard but no screening for politics," said one official.

Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, assistant HEW secretary for health, confirmed the political checks in an interview.

The screening, he agreed in response to a question, is particularly difficult because most scientists qualified and interested in committee posts are liberal Democrats connected with major universities.

Bloomfield Woman Places in Contest

BLOOMFIELD — Mrs. Louise Tirmenstein was named fourth-place winner in a national short story contest sponsored by the National Writers Club of Denver, Colo.

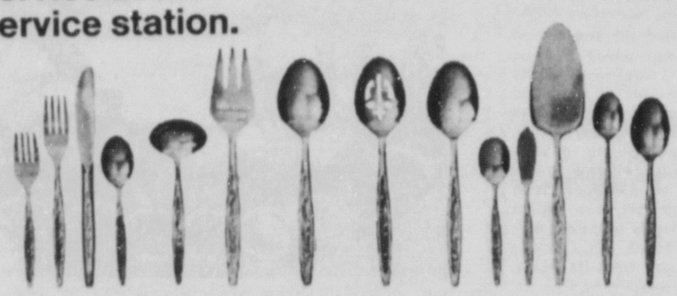

Mrs. Tirmenstein's story "Poor Cupid Lies Dead," was praised by the contest judges for its "skillful handling and its appealing style."

She began writing about 10 years ago, beginning with the short-short story form because she felt it was "good discipline." She said a course in short-short story writing offered by the Writer's Digest was "very valuable."

Mrs. Tirmenstein has written several short stories. "In order to test them, I entered several contests," she said, "I won a prize from the Writer's Digest on my first try."

For the past three years she has submitted entries in the annual National Writers Club contest.

Keep your budget balanced

You want a building you can be proud of. Good looking. Functional. Serviceable. And tailored to your needs.

But you need to know what it's going to cost to build. And to maintain.

So we have a suggestion. Instead of letting somebody else build you a building the ordinary way, why not let us build you a building the Butler way.

We'll put you in a beautiful building exactly suited to your needs. We'll tell you what it's going to cost before we start. And you can be sure of low, long-term maintenance costs, too.

That's because we build Butler buildings around components designed and manufactured to work together. They're proven building systems. Which means that performance of the structure —and many of our building costs—are already established.

If sticking to your building budget without cutting corners is something you're looking for, give us a call. We're your Butler Builder®.

Let us build you a Butler Building

Armed with Pencils, IRS Agents Dog Tax Dodgers

By MARY ELLEN RIDDLE
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Richard Nossen leaned back in the chair and crossed his arms contentedly.

"Our tax system," he said, "is a voluntary one. This is the only country I know of where almost everybody pays his taxes without someone coming to collect them."

Nossen has a good reason for being happy about the way Americans respond to the annual letter from the Internal Revenue Service: He is one of the men responsible for finding the people who don't pay their taxes.

He works in a monolithic building here (so big that each of the hallways is painted in a different brilliant headache-causing color so the employes don't get lost) as a staff assistant in the intelligence division of IRS.

"Maybe it's not voluntary in the sense that people want to pay their taxes," he admitted after a little prodding about fines and prisons, "but we have to go out and collect only 3 per cent of all federal taxes. The rest just comes in."

Collecting that 3 per cent is what keeps 1,800 Internal Revenue special agents busy. According to Nossen, their work assures honest taxpayers that the people who are not paying their share don't get away with it.

These pencil-pushing James Bonds comb newspaper articles, convince unwary secretaries to hand over financial records, subpoena bank account records and lurk in bushes, looking for proof that their suspects are making more money than shows up on their tax forms.

And they get into some weird situations.

Like figuring out how much money a house for shady ladies was making by multiplying the average cost for services by the number of towels delivered to the house each day.

Or placing a series of bets to bust a bookie.

Their work leads the agents into the underworld because criminals involved in illegal businesses do not report the profits they make from gambling, drug sales, prostitution, extortion, murder and arson. But these ill-gotten gains are income and subject to taxation.

That's how it happened, back in the '30s, that Elliot Ness, an IRS agent, got Al Capone on tax evasion when police had been unable to prove his connection with anything else.

In many IRS cases, the only crime involved is the tax evasion itself. All kinds of people, Nossen said, from doctors and lawyers to maids and headwaiters, have been convicted of cheating on their taxes.

Ironically, most of their leads into the most scrupulously disguised evasions come from the daily newspapers.

Agents check to see if the man who reported that $50,000 was taken from a wall safe in his home reported an income that large. And they want to know why he didn't keep such a large sum in a bank.

Nossen held up a sharpened pencil. "This is our ultimate weapon," he said. Proof of tax evasion is usually found by examining ledgers, adding long columns of figures and looking for erasures or other suspicious alterations in financial records."

That's how they caught a doctor who had been working on his books as well as his patients for 10 years. The agents found that more than $90,000 had been "lost" somewhere between the doctor's wallet and his ledger book.

They've got a computer that discovered one taxpayer who had filed 130 returns in 33 states. If he had gotten away with it, the man would have received $43,000 in illegal refunds.

Only about 2,500 cases get the full investigation treatment from IRS each year. And of that number only 1,000 to 1,400 are recommended for prosecution. The IRS has to be very sure it's right before taking a case to court. The cases investigated and prosecuted are selected from the widest variety of professions, locations and income brackets possible.

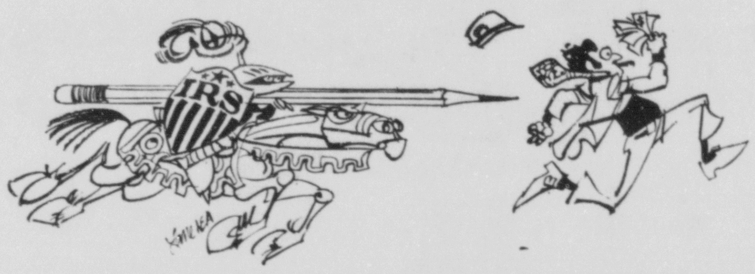

"Our goal," Nossen said, "is to make people continue to voluntarily pay their taxes. Our goal is to scare the most people."

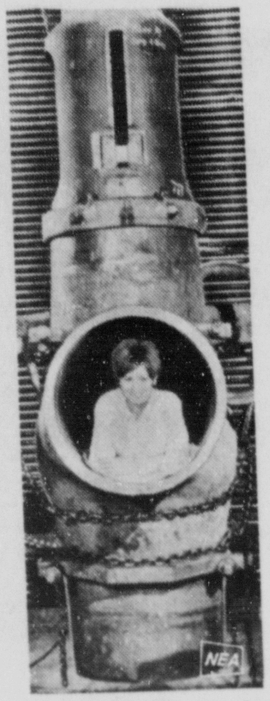

He thought about the statement for a few seconds. "Maybe you should say our goal is to achieve the highest level of deterrence."

Nossen doesn't think there is any way even he could get away with tax evasion.

"Ten years ago you could have done it with a numbered account in a Swiss bank," he said. "But now, I wouldn't feel so secure. We're finding ways to get around that, too."

But in line with IRS's policy of keeping people scared, he wouldn't say how.

EYE STOPPER occupies plant stopper. A young woman relaxes in a 16,000-pound globe valve used for emergency drop tight shut-off of very high-pressure, high-temperature steam. The 28-inch Rockwell valve is more than 16 feet high and will be installed in a nuclear power plant.

Specialist Miller is from Cosby, Tenn., and Specialist Naviera is from New York City.

1970 Army Wife of the Year

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Mrs. Gussie S. Sanford, wife of Lt. Col. Albert Sanford, Headquarters, 3d Armored Division in Frankfurt, Germany, has been selected as the 1970 Army Wife of the Year and will represent the Army in the Military Wife of the Year program to be conducted in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Sanford

Mrs. Betty Earleywine, wife of Maj. Gene A. Earleywine, assigned to the 1st Special Forces Group (Airborne) in Okinawa was the runner-up.

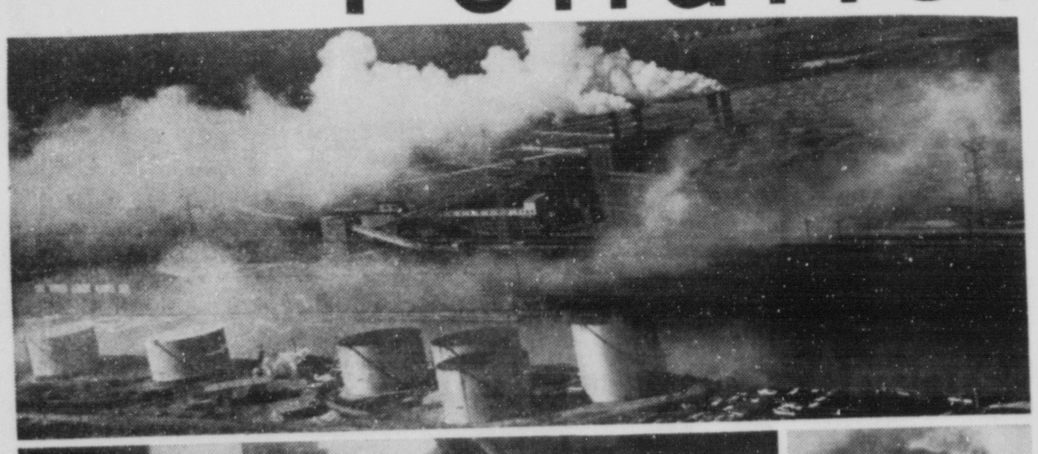

Mrs. Sanford, a former teacher and mother of five children, has been active in German-American affairs and has fostered an informal person-to-person diplomacy among her German neighbors. She is a leading member of the Steuben-Schurz Gesselschraft, a German-American society, and an honorary member of the Haus der Volksarbeit, a German-Catholic women's organization in Frankfurt. She is also president of the Military Council of Catholic Women, an international organization involved in all phases of life in the civilian community as well as the military one.

The 1970 Army selection panel consisted of the wives of top officials in Department of the Army. They were: Mrs. Stanley R. Resor, Mrs. Thaddeus R. Beal, Mrs. William C. Westmoreland and Mrs. George W. Dunaway. Mrs. Winant Sidle, wife of the Army's Chief of Information, was coordinator for the panel's activity.

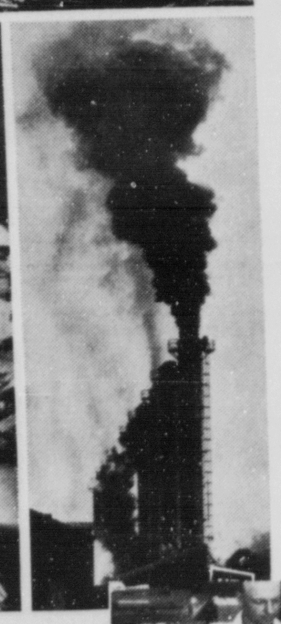

Selection for the title is based on active participation in local community and civic affairs, and contributions to the improvement of people-to-people relationships.

Pollution . . .

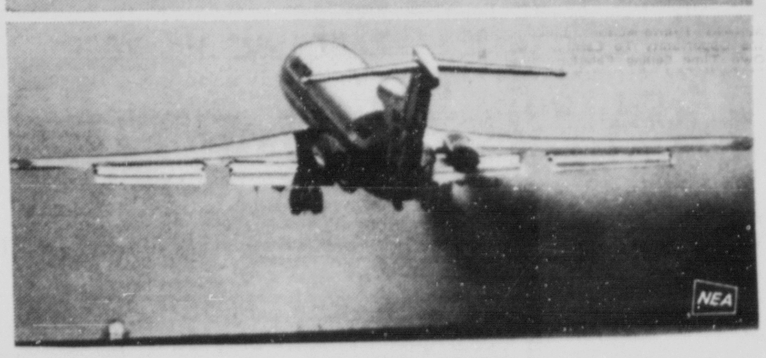

and some steps in the right direction

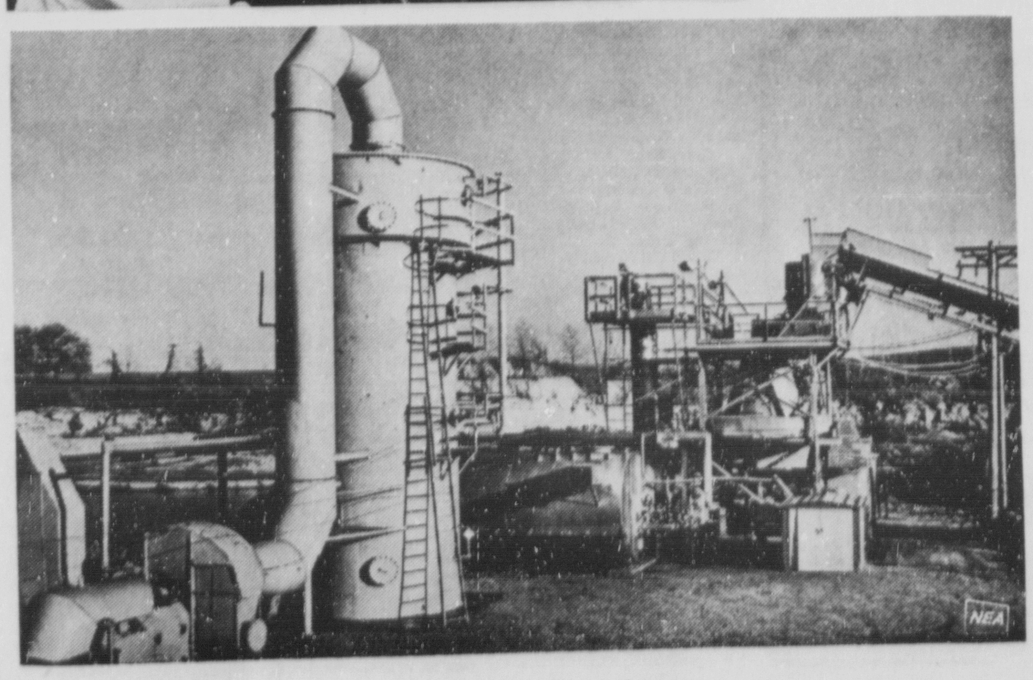

Modified jet engines on 727, top photo above, emit virtually no smoke on take-off as compared with plane equipped with standard engines, bottom. In response to government pressure to cut down air pollutants from jet aircraft, the airline industry is spending millions to reduce smoke emissions from its fleets.

Auto emission is blamed for a major portion of U.S. air pollution and auto makers have taken on the problem. At left, Detroit technicians in a test laboratory measure and record air-polluting emissions produced by auto being "driven" on a chassis dynamometer.

Glass containers, salvaged from refuse and litter, may find a new use as paving material. Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution, examines a block of paving that utilizes crushed glass from used bottles as aggregate. The glasphalt block was lifted from a parking lot in Toledo, Ohio, where process is being tested.

Experimental incinerator is turning trash into a harmless, odorless gas. New process, called pyrolysis, entails burning a substance in the absence of oxygen. Tests at St. Louis, Mo., have been termed encouraging.

HIS CUP RUNNETH OUT? Robert Dick is the U.S. government's only full-time teataster, but chances that he'll keep his job look slim. Busy at work in his Brooklyn, N.Y., office, Dick demonstrates one aspect of his job which government cutbacks in spending are almost sure to eliminate.

If You Were the Judge

Suicide Is Matter Of Individual Intent

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Suzy decided to commit suicide. She turned on the jets in her oven and went to sleep on a nearby couch. An hour later, she awoke with a change ofheart and turned off the gas jets, thankful that she was still in her apartment and not in heaven. And, as she reflected upon her near folly, she lit the burner under her kettle, intending to have a cup of tea.

The result? The burner ignited the gas that was still in the room and Suzy was blown helta- skelta in the ensuing explosion. Landing in a hospital, Suzy filed a claim under an accident policy for the injuries she suffered.

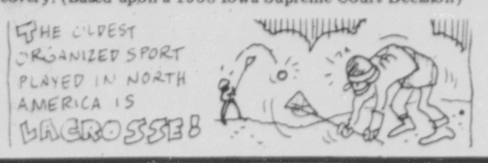

"Sorry, lady," she was told, "but under your policy, there is no coverage for injuries received as the result of an attempted suicide."

"I wasn't attempting suicide when the explosion occurred," retorted Suzy. "I was attempting to have a cup of tea. The explosion was a pure accident. Therefore, I'm entitled to collect."

When no payment was forthcoming, Suzy took her claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the insurance company pay off on the accident policy?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that Suzy's injuries were accidental since she had not intended to commit suicide by blowing herself up. At the time of the explosion, the suicide attempt was over. Thus, the suicide clause did not bar her recovery. (Based upon a 1958 Iowa Supreme Court Decision)

Many a drunk driver will go out of his way for you.

It's not hard to see how each year, problem drinkers are involved in killing at least 25,000 of us on our highways. When people lose control drinking, they often lose control driving.

But what is hard to see is why we keep letting them. Many problem drinkers need to be helped. But first, they need to be taken off the road. Sooner or later, it has to happen. Make it sooner. Today In U.S. History

Today is Thursday, June 4, the 155th day of 1970. There are 210 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1942, the Pacific war battle of Midway began. The naval warfare ended in Japan's first decisive defeat in the war.

On this date:

In 1805, the United States concluded a peace treaty with Tripoli.

In 1831, Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg was chosen as the first king of Belgium.

In 1896, Henry Ford made a successful run with his first car -a nighttime drive around streets of Detroit.

In 1936, the first socialist government of France took office under Premier Leon Blum.

In 1943, army troops marched into Buenos Aires, Argentina, and overthrew the government of President Ramon S. Castillo.

In 1946, Juan Peron was inaugurated president of Argenta.

Ten years ago: The United States sent a formal note to Cuba accusing the Havana government of conductiong an official campaign of slander against the United States.

Five years ago: Communist China's premier Chou En-lai made an official visit to Tanzania.

One year ago: Seventy-nine persons were killed in the crash of a Mexican airliner on a mountain in northeastern Mexico.

KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY

Howard Kershner Edward Rowe

In his annual report to Congress on the state of the economy, President Nixon called for an end to inflation and the erosion of the dollar, a balanced budget, stability of prices, the preservation of the free market economy and equal opportunity for all.

The nation will approve of these objectives.

Certain statements in the address, however, seem to us very puzzling. For instance:

"Our purpose has been to slow down the rapid expansion of demand firmly and persistently . . ."

Wouldn't it be better to put the emphasis on supplying the goods and services to meet the demand? Surely, there is nothing wrong about people wanting more things. What is needed is to maintain balance between the various groups of producers so that what one offers will readily exchange in the marketplace for what others are offering. Provided balanced relationships are maintained,—there is no limit to what people can have except their willingness to work hard enough to produce the goods and services they desire.

Let's not limit demand—let's meet it—and all of us enjoy higher living standards!

The President states, as if it were something desirable, that in 1970 we may expect ". . . continuation of a low rate of growth of sales, production and employment . . ."

We do not believe this is necessary. Freedom in the marketplace, without government intervention on behalf of any group, would maintain the balance that would keep the markets clear and permit a steady growth in production, employment and total output of goods and services. If this principle were recognized and followed, we could all work all the time, dispose of our goods and services readily, and have as much of the good things of life as our efforts would provide.

Suicide Is Matter Of Individual Intent

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Suzy decided to commit suicide. She turned on the jets in her oven and went to sleep on a nearby couch. An hour later, she awoke with a change ofheart and turned off the gas jets, thankful that she was still in her apartment and not in heaven. And, as she reflected upon her near folly, she lit the burner under her kettle, intending to have a cup of tea.

The result? The burner ignited the gas that was still in the room and Suzy was blown helta- skelta in the ensuing explosion. Landing in a hospital, Suzy filed a claim under an accident policy for the injuries she suffered.

"Sorry, lady," she was told, "but under your policy, there is no coverage for injuries received as the result of an attempted suicide."

"I wasn't attempting suicide when the explosion occurred," retorted Suzy. "I was attempting to have a cup of tea. The explosion was a pure accident. Therefore, I'm entitled to collect."

When no payment was forthcoming, Suzy took her claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the insurance company pay off on the accident policy?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that Suzy's injuries were accidental since she had not intended to commit suicide by blowing herself up. At the time of the explosion, the suicide attempt was over. Thus, the suicide clause did not bar her recovery. (Based upon a 1958 Iowa Supreme Court Decision)

Many a drunk driver will go out of his way for you.

It's not hard to see how each year, problem drinkers are involved in killing at least 25,000 of us on our highways. When people lose control drinking, they often lose control driving.

But what is hard to see is why we keep letting them. Many problem drinkers need to be helped. But first, they need to be taken off the road. Sooner or later, it has to happen. Make it sooner. Today In U.S. History

Today is Thursday, June 4, the 155th day of 1970. There are 210 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1942, the Pacific war battle of Midway began. The naval warfare ended in Japan's first decisive defeat in the war.

On this date:

In 1805, the United States concluded a peace treaty with Tripoli.

In 1831, Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg was chosen as the first king of Belgium.

In 1896, Henry Ford made a successful run with his first car -a nighttime drive around streets of Detroit.

In 1936, the first socialist government of France took office under Premier Leon Blum.

In 1943, army troops marched into Buenos Aires, Argentina, and overthrew the government of President Ramon S. Castillo.

In 1946, Juan Peron was inaugurated president of Argenta.

Ten years ago: The United States sent a formal note to Cuba accusing the Havana government of conductiong an official campaign of slander against the United States.

Five years ago: Communist China's premier Chou En-lai made an official visit to Tanzania.

One year ago: Seventy-nine persons were killed in the crash of a Mexican airliner on a mountain in northeastern Mexico.

KERSHNER-ROWE COMMENTARY

Howard Kershner Edward Rowe

In his annual report to Congress on the state of the economy, President Nixon called for an end to inflation and the erosion of the dollar, a balanced budget, stability of prices, the preservation of the free market economy and equal opportunity for all.

The nation will approve of these objectives.

Certain statements in the address, however, seem to us very puzzling. For instance:

"Our purpose has been to slow down the rapid expansion of demand firmly and persistently . . ."

Wouldn't it be better to put the emphasis on supplying the goods and services to meet the demand? Surely, there is nothing wrong about people wanting more things. What is needed is to maintain balance between the various groups of producers so that what one offers will readily exchange in the marketplace for what others are offering. Provided balanced relationships are maintained,—there is no limit to what people can have except their willingness to work hard enough to produce the goods and services they desire.

Let's not limit demand—let's meet it—and all of us enjoy higher living standards!

The President states, as if it were something desirable, that in 1970 we may expect ". . . continuation of a low rate of growth of sales, production and employment . . ."

We do not believe this is necessary. Freedom in the marketplace, without government intervention on behalf of any group, would maintain the balance that would keep the markets clear and permit a steady growth in production, employment and total output of goods and services. If this principle were recognized and followed, we could all work all the time, dispose of our goods and services readily, and have as much of the good things of life as our efforts would provide.

Enemy Close to Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces captured a town 10 miles southeast of Phnom Penh today and battled for control of a provincial capital in central Cambodia, the Cambodian military command reported.

The attack on Set Bo, to the southeast, was the closest major fighting yet to the Cambodian capital. A spokesman said the attack came during the night and the last government resistance was knocked out at 7 a.m. But he said the Cambodian army was launching a counteroffensive.

Eighty miles north of Phnom Penh, fighting was reported still going on in the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, a town of about 25,000 on the highway to Angkor Wat.

The spokesman said enemy forces had been massing for several days around Kompong Thom, which was cut off from Phnom Penh last week by the capture of a district capital just south of it and destruction of a major highway bridge.

Kompong Thom's defenders requested air bombardment of the enemy positions Wednesday, the spokesman said, but "due to the hour it was not possible." He said he had no reports of air activity in the area today, but that a sizeable force of government regulars was on hand to defend the town.

In the past, the militia was the only defense of some major points and buckled before the Communist command's battlehardened troops last week. South Vietnamese troops saved Prey Veng, another provincial capital southeast of Phnom Penh, but the nearest South Vietnamese forces to Kompong Thom were 65 miles away.

The attacks at Set Bo and Kompong Thom appeared to be a continuation of a Communist tactic of pressure over a wide area to score propaganda gains and confuse the Cambodian high command.

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam flew to Phnom Penh today with a delegation of cabinet ministers, and the Cambodian government lessened restrictions on Vietnamese Cabinet ministers, and the Cambodian government lessened restrictions on Vietnamese refugees who had been herded into camps in Phnom Penh during the early days of the fighting. The refugees were given the run of the city from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m.

As Ky and Cambodian Premier Lon Nol were approaching the honor guard at the airport, a Cambodian air force C-47 made a belly landing on another runway, scattering pieces of its undercarriage about. There was considerable smoke, and fire trucks raced out, but the plane did not catch fire. Nor was the ceremony interrupted.

"He was too busy watching the ceremony, to watch his landing," Ky's pilot said of the unfortunate Cambodian flier.

Ky headed the first high-level Saigon delegation to visit Cambodia since the two neighbors broke relations in 1963. Informed sources said they would implement agreements signed last week during the visit to Saigon of Cambodian Foreign Minister Yem Sambaur, during which diplomatic relations were restored.

The decision of the Cambodian government to welcome troops from South Vietnam and Thailand, Cambodia's traditional enemies, brought a charge from the deposed chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, that the Thais and South Vietnamese were trying to "steal portions of our beloved fatherland which they have always coveted."

"The despicable traitor Lon Nol even plans to sell our country to those other despicable lackeys of U.S. aggression—Taiwan and South Korea—in order to protect himself and his henchmen," said Sihanouk in an appeal to the Cambodian people broadcast by Radio Hanoi.

In Saigon, the U.S. Command reported American battle deaths in Indochina rose slightly last week, with 110 killed in Vietnam and 55 in Cambodia, a total of 165 or 23 more than the week before. Another 521 Americans were wounded in Vietnam and 236 in Cambodia, a total of 757.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 576 dead, 158 less than the week before, and 1,480 wounded. The total of enemy deaths also was down sharply, from a revised 4,289 in the week of May 17-23 to 2,534 last week, the allied commands said. But the latter figure undoubtedly will be increased next week.

The allied commands now have reported totals of 42,430 Americans, 108,155 South Vietnamese troops and 646,671 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed in the war. A total of 278,571 Americans have been reported wounded.

The nightly Viet Cong and North Vietnamese rocket and mortar attacks across South Vietnam increased sharply in the hours before President Nixon's broadcast report on the war, the allied commands reported today. However, U.S. officers said the increase may have been due more to the dark of the moon than to any attempt to score a propaganda point in connection with Nixon's speech.

"In every month this kind of activity seems to increase when the moon is down, at it was last night," said one U.S. officer.

More than 40 rocket and mortar attacks were reported during the night and a total of 71 from 8 a.m. Wednesday to 8 a.m. Thursday.

Four Sentenced In Circuit Court

NEW MADRID — Four were sentenced in circuit court Thursday after entering guilty pleas.

Judge William L. Ragland granted probation without supervision to William Alfred "Pete" Mannon, 42, after sentencing Mannon to five years in the state department of corrections on a manslaughter charge.

Mannon had been charged with first degree murder in connection with the shooting death of his wife, Ina Mannon, Jan. 6. The state amended the charge to manslaughter.

George Savat was given a two-year sentence and granted probation with supervision after he pleaded guilty to exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon. He was accused of exhibiting a 410 shotgun at C. B. Correthers, Howardsville, Jan. 16.

Dewey Honey charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of a guitar belonging to Ricky Jay Drennon, Risco, Jan. 31, was granted probation with supervision after receiving a two year sentence.

Glenn Crews originally charged with exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon against Helen Jaynes, Parma, on Sept. 6, 1969, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of disturbing the peace. He was given a suspended 60-day county jail sentence upon payment of costs and $25 fine.

Charges dismissed by the state include Carl Joe Evans and Nathan Delota Randall, each charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

St. Francis Levee Tax Reduced

CARUTHERSVILLE— St. Francis Levee district, directors adopted a 25 per cent to 15 cents per acre reduction in the tax rate.

The reduction was made possible because of the good financial condition of the district. There is no construction work scheduled this year.

The rate of 20 cents per acre was established in 1966, after a 50 per cent increase was made for construction of a berm, to strengthen banks in the Gayoso Bend and Island 16 areas.

Members of the board are S. Crews Reynolds, Caruthersville, president; T. A. Haggard, Steele, vice president; Wayne DeLisle, Portageville; Glenn Petersen, Wardell; A. P. Kersey Jr., Caruthersville, and George T. Glozier, Caruthersville, Chief engineer, and Catherine T. Kaiser, secretary.

Bill to Raise Debt Ceiling Heads for Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — After surviving war critics' attacks in the House, a bill to raise the national debt ceiling by $18 billion heads for the Senate amid indications its quick passage might hinge on the Cambodian war policy debate.

The House passed the measure Wednesday by a 236-127 vote. It permits raising the national debt limit from $377 billion to $395 billion.

Some senators mentioned the possibility that action on the bill might be delayed if debate continues on another measure to curtail military spending in Cambodia.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures prices were irregular in early dealings today.

On the opening, wheat was ½ cent a bushel lower to ¼ higher, July 1.35½; corn was ¼ lower to 1/8 higher, July 1.30; oats were unchanged to ¼ higher, July 65 5/8 cents rye was unchanged, July bid 1.05 3/8 and soybeans were 3/8 lower to ¼ higher, July 2.72.

Contractors, Strikers Agree

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Contractors and striking hoisting engineers reached tentative agreement early today on a contract settlement and it is hoped will end a 64-day strike. The strike has paralyzed the construction industry in St. Louis.

The strike by about 150 employes of sand and gravel producers shut off the flow of ready-mixed concrete and in turn idled much of an estimated $500 million worth of construction.

The strike by Hoisting Engineers Local 513 caused the layoff of about 18,000 members of other unions at a cost of nearly $2.3 million a day in wages. The strike began April 4.

Two Held in Theft Released

CHARLESTON — Magistrate Court Judge T. J. Brown, Jr. ordered the release of Richard Leroy Clark and Billy Joe Garrett, Jr. from custody and placed them on probation for one year. Clark and Garrett had been convicted of stealing less than $50 and given six month jail sentences.

Seven speeding violators appeared before Judge Brown; Edward Lisle House fined $40; James Nolen Jolliff fined $33; Donald Wilson MacAllister fined $24; Katherine Virginia Owens fined $21; Milam Alton McNeal fined $26; Albert Dee Reed fined $21; and Rodger Lynn Brooks fined $25.

Amon Benson Ashcraft nd Norman Hale Caldwell were each fined $21 on charges of careless and imprudent driving.

A charge of non- support brought against Claude Marbry was dismissed by the state at $9.50 costs to the defendant.

Judge Brown assessed a $32.70 fine to Lester Cain, et al for disturbing the peace, and a $22 fine to Helen Wethington on a similar charge.

Murphy Lee Young paid a $26 fine for exceeding weight for which his truck was licensed.

A Promissory note suit brought by Brown Smith d/b/a Brown Smith Used Cars, against Keith Lee and Henry Lee was dismissed by the plaintiff without prejudice. Smith also dismissed another promissory note suit against Arnold Williams.

Judgment was found for the plaintiff, Southeast Missouri Hospital to recover from Nicholas Reichert and Sherry Reichert $362.84 principal, $12 interest, plus $9.50 costs in an account suit.

Car-Bike Crash Averted

PERRYVILLE — A car-bicycle collision was avoided Wednesday at 3:15 p.m. on highway, four miles south of Perryville, the state highway patrol said.

Evelyn E. Moran, 50, driver of a 1970 Ford, came over a hill, and saw a bicycle ridden by Kevin Lee Balsman, 13, Perryville.

Applying her brakes she skidded off the higway and ran into a fence.

Mrs. Moran was taken to Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville, where she was treated for a knee injury.

Rock Group Records

CARUTHERSVILLE — The Collection, a rock group from the bootheel, has gained a following throughout the Mid-South.

Their new single record on Rolando Records of Memphis, features as the A- side, a song written by Jamie Holmes, a drummer of the group, titled: "Flying High Wednesday," backed with a new arrangement of a Knight Brothers' recording from the 1950's titled: "Temptation's 'Bout To Get Me."

The Collection was originally known as the Nite Raiders. They got their start as the Nite Raiders in 1966 in Caruthersville, home of four members of the group.

In 1967 they were winners of the Missouri Jaycee Battle of the Bands contest and competed in the finals of the National Jaycee Battle of the Bands contest in Boston, Mass.

Their picture was featured in Life magazine along with an article concerning the Battle of the Bands. They were also featured in Hullaballo magazine the same year.

Although the oldest member of the group is only 23, the youngest 17, they have a tremendous background, having worked singularly and collectively with everal known groups and individual stars. They have also made numerous television and concert appearances.

The members are- John Hornyak, piano, organ, rhythm guitar; Wendell Stanfill, bass, backing vocals; Jerry Stanfill, lead guitar; Jamie Holmes, drums, flute, sax; Mark Carroll, lead vocals, harmonica; Don Smith, lead vocals, percussion.
